MERGER PROBE FAILS

Reaction Varies Outside Saanich

By IAN STREET

Reaction in other parts of Greater Victoria to the defeat of yesterday's amalgamation referendum in Saanich ranged from indifference to bitter disappointment.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and other members of city council who strongly supported further investigation of all aspects of amalgamation were disappointed but not surprised by the outcome.

DOUBT LEFT

John Wallace, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said the vote against amalgamation left doubt in some minds whether the people of Saanich really wanted progress.

He predicted that "all the things Saanich fears" including soaring taxes and deteriorating services will come true in the next decade.

The reeves of Oak Bay and Esquimalt made it clear that their opposition to amalgamation had not been affected by yesterday's vote. Both said it did not concern their municipalities.

'BACK TO BUSINESS'

"Now we can go back to carrying on business of the city," said Mayor Wilson, after learning the result of the Saanich vote.

He added: "When the time comes, as it most certainly will some day, for Saanich to want an investigation of amalgamation, in the interests of the larger community I hope the city will still be willing to talk terms."

R. J. Bower, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee on amalgamation, said he is still of the opinion that "it is imperative we have a full investigation of the feasibility of amalgamation."

NO DECISION

Until all the facts and figures brought to light by such a detailed study are placed before the public, said Mr. Bower, it is not possible to make a final decision.

A meeting of the chamber's committee will be called within a few days to decide on its future plans, the chairman said.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, one of three aldermen seeking re-election next Thursday, said:

Rescuers Fight To Save 36 Trapped in Mine

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—A coal mine explosion trapped 36 men some 650 feet underground Thursday, and rescue crews struggled desperately to reach them.

More than eight hours after the violent blast, the three eight-man crews had worked their way about 2 1/2 miles toward the trapped men—but still were an estimated 7,000 feet from their goal.

The explosion rocked a shaft of the Robena No. 3 mine of U.S. Steel Corporation about 1:15 p.m. It is located in southwestern Pennsylvania some 80 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Mine officials said air coming up from the mine contained large amounts of carbon dioxide, indicating a strong possibility of fire.

Eighty miners were reported working in the area. Forty-four reached the surface. Twenty of these returned to the shaft to aid the trained rescue teams.

TONS OF ROCK

The rescue units had to fight their way through tons of rock, coal and other debris which blocked the lateral tunnel leading from the frothy run shaft.

A stream of trucks discharged various types of mine rescue equipment at the top of the shaft where it was relayed downward by elevators.

A spokesman said he had no knowledge of the condition of the miners, that this could be determined only after the rescue crews established contact.

ESCAPE WAY NOT USED

The explosion came on the 55th anniversary of the worst mine accident on record in the United States. That was the disaster of Dec. 6, 1907, at Monongah, W. Va., which took 361 lives.

President Kennedy said Nov. 28 that the Soviet leader had promised to get all the planes out of Cuba within 30 days.

Perhaps by coincidence, the 42 bombers match the total of missiles which the Russians and Air Force Veterans, Victoria Unit No. 12.

"But our members decided to forego the party this year and endeavor to spread the joy around, so to speak."

"They wanted to give a little greater assistance to the community as well as continuing the usual veterans' assistance with hampers and so on," Mr. Radley said.

"They wanted to branch out a little and help out more," he added.

"We wish the Colonist 500 Fund lots of luck in its endeavors."

The cheque, not received when yesterday's list was made, totals the fund total over $4,500.

Centennial Square

Park Aim: To Unify

By IAN STREET

Fifth of a Series

Centennial Square must attract people to come alive — hence the multiplicity of uses planned in and around it.

It will continue to be the centre of local government and law enforcement. With addition of a civic playhouse it will become a cultural centre and one for recreation, as well, in meeting needs of senior citizens.

To Attract

It will include an arcade of specialty shops and a parking garage for 300 cars, both of which serve to attract shoppers to the area.

Last, but not least, it will form a new urban park. Planners use words like "unifying force" and "catalyst" to describe the function which the square performs in relating each of these uses to the others. They say it will provide a new, open breathing space for the city.

Close Streets

To create the urban square plans are being made to demolish several buildings and close Cormorant Street in the block between Douglas and Government, and Broad Street between Cormorant and Pandora.

The scheme also calls for re-

U.K. Smog Toll Reaches 90

LONDON (CP) — The dense killer smog descended on London again Thursday night but the weather forecast promised relief today.

Since Monday, the choking and sulphurous pall claimed 90 lives, according to a late night count.

It has wrecked transportation and caused huge losses in trade and industry.

But a weather bureau spokesman said it would thin this morning and by afternoon Londoners should see the sun.

Most of the known dead were victims of heart or lung diseases suddenly aggravated by sulphur-laden fumes.

And if the pattern of the great killer smog of 1952 (4,000 dead) is followed, many more will die of the same causes over the next few weeks whether or not the smog persists.

Can't Stop Winnie

LONDON (AP) — Smog kept most everybody home Thursday night but not Sir Winston Churchill.

The wartime prime minister, 88, drove from his Hyde Park Gate home to the Savoy Hotel to attend a dinner meeting of The Other Club—a group limited to 70 members drawn from the arts, literature and politics.

Newcomer

Only new councillor in Oak Bay, Alex Hendry replaces Coun. Fred Hawes who did not seek re-election. Like Coun. Hawes, Mr. Hendry is a lumber company executive and wants the province to give the municipalities a better financial deal.

Tots Forego Party to Cheer Others

Children of some Victoria armed services veterans will skip their annual Christmas party this year so that 500 other Victorians can be happier.

A cheque for $100 was in the mail yesterday for The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund from the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, Victoria Unit No. 12.

"Over the years we've held a Christmas party for the children of members and continued with our assistance to the needy veterans in the community," said secretary John Radley.

"But our members decided to forego the party this year and endeavor to spread the joy around, so to speak."

"They wanted to give a little greater assistance to the community as well as continuing the usual veterans' assistance with hampers and so on," Mr. Radley said.

"They wanted to branch out a little and help out more," he added.

"We wish the Colonist 500 Fund lots of luck in its endeavors."

The cheque, not received when yesterday's list was made, totals the fund total over $4,500.

It's welcome help, and just another demonstration of how Donations to the 500 Fund may be brought or mailed to The Daily Colonist at 5631 Douglas of left at Acousticon of Victoria, 740 Yates, during business hours. Donors should specify if they wish to be anonymous. Receipts for income tax purposes will be supplied on request.

Islanders of all walks of life pitch in. Yesterday's list includes donations from the Victoria Drill Corps Alumni; from many friends; from the International Woodworkers of America Local 1-118, and the Bapco Employees' Association. Perhaps the phrase "spread the joy" is the key to it all. For that is the reason for the 500 Fund. Just before Christmas, the fund is divided into 500 equal cheques. They then go to the 500 Victoria homes or families that most need help.

They go as gifts, to be used any way at all.

They're meant as a true Christmas present, underlining "present."

They say, and mean, "Merry Christmas—your father, your mother, your family, your friends. Have you forgotten?"

Kennedy Pet Expecting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pushkin, the dog Premier Khrushchev sent to Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, is "in all probability" pregnant. White House sources confirmed this may be the case with the two-year-old offspring of the Russian space dog, Belka.

There is little doubt that the father is Charlie, Cavendish Kennedy's Welsh terrier.

KHRUSHCHEV GREETES TITO

Khrushchev, Tito Frank, Friendly

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev and Yugoslav President Tito began formal conferences in the Kremlin Thursday, presumably to weld a common front against the propaganda onslaught from Communist China.

The Soviet news agency Tass described the discussion as a "frank and friendly exchange of opinion."

Soviet aid for the hard-pressed Yugoslav economy also is expected to figure in the talks.

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, walked together to a dinner of the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., Foundation for research in the field of mental retardation.

Stevenson, who was master of ceremonies, has been reported to have incurred the Kennedy administration's displeasure with views expressed during the Cuban crisis.

JACKSON, Miss. — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker paid a surprise visit to the Mississippi House of Representatives and got a standing ovation from members who voted 101-10 to let him speak.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Adam Miller, arrested on a drug charge was released after it was learned he might have had an epileptic seizure.

VATICAN CITY — Pope John has authorized new regulations designed to speed the work of the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical council by using its nine-month recess to redraft almost all proposals before it.

OTTAWA — Vancouver businessman Hugh Martin has been re-appointed chairman of the Liberal Party's federal campaign committee in B.C. John D. Taggart, a Vancouver lawyer, was renamed committee co-chairman.

WASHINGTON — Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.-Ore.) noted in a letter to Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.-Mont.), chairman of the Senate rules committee, that some Canadian LONDON (Reuters) — The comment of Dean Acheson, former U.S. state secretary that Britain is "about played out" as an independent power had some Britons hopping mad Thursday.

Official public reaction was mild, but Conservative cabinet ministers and opposition Labor party leaders made no attempt in private to conceal their dislike of Acheson's comments.

There was no lack of unofficial public reaction, however.

'Manifesto of Contempt' for U.K.

The Evening Standard says, Acheson's speech at West Point, New York, Wednesday is "the most savage and candid attack upon this country uttered by an influential American in recent times."

CYNICAL TERMS

The newspaper's editorial, headed "American revealed," says:

"It is a manifesto of contempt which may well stand as a historic document tracing in clear, even cynical, terms the new relationships appropriate to an expedient modern American foreign policy."

Acheson, state secretary under former President Truman, told a West Point conference "Britain's attempt to play a separate power role—that is, a role apart from Europe, a role based on a 'special relationship' with the United States, a role based on being the head of a Commonwealth which has no political structure or unity or strength and enjoys a fragile and precarious economic relationship—that role is about played out."

But a foreign office spokesman said he understood that Acheson—President Kennedy's adviser on NATO affairs—was not speaking as a U.S. administration official.

"I understand that Mr. Acheson was talking as a private individual and not as a member

Sea Raid, Ambush Hit Central Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Armed counter-revolutionaries struck twice this week in central Cuba and the Havana press charged the United States was behind both attacks—one a sea-borne raid, the other an ambush.

A militiaman was reported killed in a minor political official riding with him in a jeep was wounded in an attack close to Jaguey Grande in Matanzas province, less than 90 miles southeast of Havana. No date was given.

NO CASUALTIES

The seaborne raiders shot up a group of fishermen near Calbarren in Las Villas province Tuesday night. No casualties were reported.

Havana radio said the attack was at San Francisco Beach, 18 miles from Calbarren. It described the attackers as pirates and said they had a refuge in the U.S.

DENOUNCED TO UN

Cuba formally denounced the Las Villas raid in a note to the United Nations and declared it provided further proof that Premier Castro's proposed five-point plan was necessary as the only means of settling the Caribbean crisis.

No Pay—No Vote

ONCE AGAIN a warning has gone out to the world that the United Nations is on the verge of bankruptcy. For more than two years member nations have been constantly advised by the Secretary-General's office that the organization is in desperate financial straits—yet comparatively few have either heeded the message or shown any particular desire to accept responsibility in overcoming the problem.

This dereliction of duty stems, in fact, right from the Security Council itself, where two of the five permanent members—France and the Soviet Union—have bluntly refused to contribute any funds to the United Nations force serving in the Congo despite the fact that the World Court has ruled that the peace-making operation being carried out there is a legitimate function of the United Nations.

This, however, is only part of the reason the UN now finds itself unable to meet all its financial commitments. For a good few years many member nations, both new and old, have failed to pay their membership fees—fees which have been assessed realistically in relation to each country's ability to pay.

Other more generous, and responsible, members have in past years attempted to make up the resultant shortfall in UN funds by contributing more than their fair share. Peculiarly enough it is the very countries which continually renege that stand to gain most from membership in the international body.

Perhaps the time has come that a new rule of procedure be established in the General Assembly based on the simple principle of no pay—no vote. Once the privilege of expressing their opinions before the assembly has been removed from the back-sliders, they may quickly see the errors of their ways and pay up.

Pleasing Image

THE TOURING Canadian rugby team has won its first victory in 16 games in Britain, beating a Welsh fifteen by the narrow but sufficient margin of 8-3 points.

That may seem a slight enough achievement but its real value lies in the unanimity with which English newspapers greeted the Canadian win. They were all pleased.

This reaction came because all through their tour, playing against far more experienced opponents in a game traditional to the British Isles, the Canadians have put up a fine show of sportsmanship. They have been splendid ambassadors for their country.

Only a week ago the rugby expert of the London Times remarked on the "astounding improvement" of the Canadian play as compared to the earlier games of the tour. This was proof enough that the chief object of the overseas trip was being reached; to gain an experience they could pass on when they returned home.

In fact one or two of the games lost could by a turn of fortune have resulted differently, and the Canadians also held a noted English club to a draw. Coupled with this latest victory the tour results can be deemed quite satisfactory.

It is a measure of the popularity of the Canadian players that twice their captain has been cheered off the field by their opponents. No better evidence of admiration can be forthcoming than that.

Of late there have been suggestions by the gloomsters of Canadian politics that the Canadian image in Britain has been badly damaged. Our rugby tourists have proved the opposite, by behavior on and off the field that has given pleasure and won respect from all sections of the public.

Abstractability

OVER THE years abstract art has been the object of much scorn and vilification. The uninitiated cannot understand it, the initiated cannot explain it, the general public laughs at it, and until recently, heads of state have ignored it.

The practitioners of the art itself have retaliated by stepping up their production to an alarming rate and devoting much of their time to exploring new art forms such as chimpanzees' finger smearing and the impressions left on canvas after it has been rolled over by Parisian models covered by paint and little else.

But despite all this enterprise, abstractionists by and large have been left to exist in the cacophonous limbo they had created for themselves, unseen, unwanted and unmixed.

But suddenly all this has changed. In the space of a single fortnight they and their art have been recognized—and commented upon—from both sides of the iron curtain. Strangely similar statements have been issued by those in high authority in Russia and in the United Kingdom—giving rise to hope that the West and the East may be in far greater accord than many suspect.

Note, if you will, the almost identical attitude toward abstract art held by HRH the Duke of Edinburgh and Premier Nikita Khrushchev. One sums it up as "ridiculous," the other as "these pathological vagaries." Unquestionably they are agreed on the subject.

Can it be then, that abstractionism has succeeded where diplomacy has failed by drawing together the proponents of political ideologies which hitherto have been considered poles apart?

However, even though abstract art may never go down in history as the catalytic agent bringing about a complete rapprochement between capitalism and communism, it has served to prove to the world that leaders of both systems are human.

Without Clothes

MR. Bernard Dumont (Belgian): What would you think of a world fair being held in Canada without a national flag? That would not be very interesting.

It is high time the people of Canada behaved as adults. Let us also act like nursery children.

A flag is the sign of a mature people, that knows where it is going. Without a flag our country looks like a man without his clothes, and that is not very nice.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

A LADY who can look back through the years to a vintage comparable to my own told me the other night that she enjoyed when I resurrected Billy Bunter. This put the little rascal back in mind although there are much more pleasant people to think of, really, even if by some quirk of the British character the aforesaid Billy, not a day older than he was 30 years ago, is currently the rage of TV across the Atlantic. That I confess I do not understand except on the mistaken thesis that bad boys are more interesting than good ones. I did not find this so when I followed the doings of Harry Wharton or, his vis-a-vis at St. Jim's, Tom Merry, nor do I recall that the Greyfriars fat boy was other than a sneaky little nuisance.

More particularly however I was astonished that in her girlhood this gracious lady even gave thought to Bunter schoolboys like Bob Cherry, Arthur Augustus D'Arcy, Bulstrode and Harry Redfern. In the days when my nose was glued to the "Gem" or the "Magnet" I was unaware that girls also read those so-called "penny dreadfuls." Perhaps I was unaware, period, for girls did not then loom as being of consequence in the masculine scheme of things—my generation being totally unlike its equivalent of today—and I would far more likely or hit a ball and read the "Union Jack" than recognize their existence.

The "Union Jack" pushes Billy Bunter aside as I write in recollection of that worthy private-eye Sexton Blake, not so socially acceptable in the book realm as Sherlock Holmes but, to a schoolboy, vastly more attractive. Did he not have for assistant, in place of a fall to whom he might say "Elementary, My Dear Watson," a sparkling youth, who could have been any of his readers, by name of Tinker, a fine bloodhound in Pedro, and a recurring antagonist in George Maraden Plummer, the policeman turned criminal. What battles of wits they had one with the other. Or so it must have been for many of my more than plentiful pennies were spent on them.

I must have managed to spread my pennies pretty far, nevertheless, for there are others of schoolboy company clamoring for mention. For example those three musketeers of I, think, the "Boys' Friend"—it was a green paper anyway—known far and wide among my fraternity as Jack, Sam and Pete. This was before racialism erupted as it does now and Pete, a Negro, was a firm favorite. He had big muscles and was stoutly backed in all his adventures by his two white pals. What exactly they did or where they went I have forgotten, but not them.

I seem to remember, also, a character later on the scene than Tom Merry or Harry Wharton and at a different school, by the spectacular name of Cot-There Gunter, a dynamic boy from the wrong side of the tracks who got there in style. And, too, there was a series somewhere about a soccer team called the Blue Crusaders which had a 20-stone goalkeeper with fair enough to be an English international. And, of course, there was the BOP and other journals with "The War in the Air," "The Yellow Peril" and other prophetic pieces of juvenile comfort.

There is no room for more, but perhaps this is enough to revive your youthful past if like the lady who provoked this causerie you also put up with Billy Bunter.

Today In History

Japanese warplanes attacked the United States base at Pearl Harbor without warning 21 years ago today—in 1941.

Some 200 Japanese aircraft from several aircraft carriers attacking in waves, struck predetermined objectives. There was heavy American loss of life and almost every United States plane was destroyed or disabled on the ground. Many ships, including the battleships Oklahoma and Arizona, were sunk.

The United States declared war the following day.

1916—David Lloyd George became prime minister of Britain.

1954—Shigeru Yoshida resigned as Japanese prime minister.

Fascinating Experiment

Another Soviet Turning Point

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

EVEN without the text of Mr. Khrushchev's final speech to the plenum of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party, which evidently carried the process of de-Stalinization further than ever before, enough has come out of that meeting to indicate that it marked yet another turning point in the post-Stalin development of Soviet Russia.

The outstanding feature was the almost casual shift of emphasis in the functions of the Communist party, which is to be split into two distinct streams, the industrialists and the agriculturists.

From now on, the Communist elite will no longer consist of a group of functionaries exercising overall supervision, at all levels of central and local government, of the economic, social and cultural life of the country in all its manifestations. Instead we have the beginning of two great pressure groups within the party, each concerned above all with making one branch of the economy work, and necessarily, fighting the other for priorities and money for investment.

It is hard to believe that the new divisive tendency will stop at an A stream and a B stream. Mr. Khrushchev went out of his way to indicate that this enhanced preoccupation with production will not in any way detract from the ideological and cultural work of the party, which, he said, will continue unabated.

But as the existing party secretaries at every level are drawn ever more deeply into the specialized orbits of industry and agriculture, there will come a time when Mr. Khrushchev will have to supervise the industrial or social life of the country, a kind of ideological elite within the party, which will sooner or later find itself in conflict with the men on the job—as the party as a whole has already found itself in conflict with the industrialists and the bureaucrats.

Mr. Khrushchev rose to power by branding himself on the party apparatus in opposition to the vested interests of the huge bureaucratic structures of the production ministries. On the face of it he stood for the ideological as opposed to the managerial interest. But his actions, the actions of an extremely practical man, have often belied his words. I have suggested more than once that what he was setting out to do was to create a new and streamlined government machine run by men who owed everything to him and on whose loyalty he could count. In short, that in building up the party Mr. Khrushchev was in the process of changing its nature.

The expansion of the secretariat of the Central Committee, hitherto the stamping ground of the pure party apparatchik, to include new men who will be concerned above all with productive aspects of the economy, confirms this view.

This heavy shift of emphasis, together with the changes in the planning structure, the new opportunities for initiative now conceded to the factory directorates (all under the supervision of Khrushchev's men), and the new expedients adopted to increase and rationalize production by paying far more attention to costing and accounting, is only a logical development (but still far from the logical climax) of a process which has been going on for some time.

The process is twofold: one aspect of it is summarized in Mr. Khrushchev's repeated statements that Communism is about production and prosperity—as opposed to political manipulation; the other is to draw increasing numbers of gifted, non-political Russians to the centre, and to restrain them from progressively identifying themselves with the actual producers whom they have to guide.

It will be their job, too, both to encourage the development of new ideas in the endless struggle to tap initiative and increase efficiency—even to the point, for example, of promoting public discussions about ways and means of harnessing the profit motive to society which abhors it—while cracking down sharply when discussion seems to be going too far.

It is one more fascinating organizational and administrative experiment. What it has to do with Communism is anybody's guess. The Chinese, for their part, insist that Mr. Khrushchev's preoccupation with economic progress, as opposed to political education, is heretical in the extreme and a betrayal of the principles of Lenin.

In American Capital

New, Exciting Confidence

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from Washington

EACH new president of the United States recreates the image of his political party. A Democratic Party under a Truman differs profoundly from the same under a Kennedy. In much the same way, the character of the capital city of Washington is also changed. The Washington which knew Eisenhower is very different from the one that is experiencing Kennedy.

Under Eisenhower it was a steady, intensely respectable, stick-to-the-rules sort of place. It housed a government that was determined to do, and to seem to do, the right thing. It was a place of innumerable small conferences. There were avalanches of words and curiously little information. Officials were accessible and yet locked away in a stern professionalism that inhibited real communication. It was a worthy, dull, bread-and-butter town.

Traditionally, the Democrats in power bring to Washington a more outgoing swashbuckling tone. They seem to delight more frankly in the sweets of office. And the Kennedy administration is no exception. A stranger here could guess the nature of the man in the White House from the nature of the capital's talk and social life—ambitious, intelligent, hard-hitting and elated.

There is almost a surfeit of information and yet it is different from that of the previous administration. The new men brought in by the president tend to be among the most intelligent in America. There is nothing humble or reticent about them. They delight in talk and perform it brilliantly. The trouble now is that there is no sure standard by which to judge what they say. They think aloud and there is a great deal of high-level speculation. The problem is to decide what to believe.

Indeed, there is an effort here to stop up some of the more conventional sources of information. The press conference has been demoted a little as an instrument of government. The admirals and generals in the defence department have been all but silent. They no longer take their plans and grievances to the press as they did when there was a general in the White House. Something like a European reticence has been imposed.

But the talk springs up afresh from a hundred new sources and the American government remains the most public and publicized of ruling bodies in the world.

Georgetown has been restored to the preeminence it knew under Roosevelt. This is the old part of the city, with brick pavements and trees and rows of small, red old houses that any city in the world would regard as a miraculous survival from the past.

It began as a merchant town, rich in slaves and tobacco and cotton on the Potomac River and it grew to be first, a Negro slum, and then the haunt of intellectuals and junior officials. Today it is the place where the new frontier has its real capital.

U.S. Objective

Greater NATO Support

By GODFREY HODGSON from Washington

THE Cuban crisis has confirmed the U.S. administration's faith in one of the central principles of its defence policy; the West must have enough conventional armed forces not to be forced to choose between nuclear weapons and giving way. The United States can therefore be expected to press much harder for a greater conventional contribution to the strength of NATO from Britain, France and Germany.

This may sound perverse, since President Kennedy, at the height of the crisis, said he shared Mr. Khrushchev's desire to work for a detente between NATO and the Warsaw Pact. But the whole trend of the strategy which has been thought out, and is now being carried out, by the president, by the defence secretary, Mr. McNamara, by the new chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, General Maxwell Taylor, and by the brilliant young civilian strategists who have taken over the Pentagon, is that America must be strong enough to choose her weapons. She must have the power to meet a nuclear attack with nuclear retaliation, the reigning doctrine holds. This explains the overwhelming build-up of relatively invulnerable Polaris submarines and buried Minuteman missiles to supplement the Strategic Air Command's bombers.

But there must also be "options." "flexible response," "graduated deterrence," in other words, the United States must be able to deal with a non-nuclear threat with non-nuclear weapons.

U.S. officials have not just made the discovery that the difference between NATO and the Warsaw Pact is one of will, and not of resources. They understand, and are even sympathetic to a point, with British reluctance to impose conscription, with French preoccupation with Algeria, with Germany's difficulties and reluctance to raise.

Their pressure on this point of Europe's conventional contribution to NATO has been far more restrained than European newspapers have some-

Dr. Adenauer

Reynard Of Bonn

By CASSANDRA from London

THE German people have been taking a close look at that remarkable ancient, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, who has controlled their destiny ever since the war.

Now in his eighty-seventh year and fighting his way through the black mud stirred up by the case of the magazine Der Spiegel, the picture that the Germans have of Adenauer is fascinating.

Trying to get the old fox into sharp focus is difficult because of the intricate—some would say devious—nature of his character.

But the German Institute for Democracy has conducted a series of public opinion polls lasting over several years and a picture emerges.

First his face. Everybody knows it except for only two per cent of the people.

It is a well-known physiognomy.

Next question: "If you did not know who Dr. Adenauer is and saw a picture of him somewhere, would you like his face or not?"

Thirty-six per cent liked his features, 37 per cent disliked them and 27 per cent just couldn't care what he looked like.

They thought he was younger than he is, that he works anything from eight to over twelve hours a day and were just about divided as to whether he remained in Germany during the Hitler period or had decamped abroad.

When the Teutons were asked: "What do you like most about Adenauer?" they came out sharply for and against him.

Those who approved of the federal chancellor did so because of "his negotiating skill, his quick-wittedness, his energy, his endurance, his well-balanced personality, his clear judgment, his upright character, his courage and his sophisticated man-of-the-world appearance."

But 33 per cent of all Germans who had definite views about Dr. Adenauer said that what they liked about him was "Absolutely nothing—with the possible exception of his frock coat."

But the smartest man since Bismarck on the German scene won hands down on the question of roses. He has the wholehearted sympathy and admiration of the Germans because he grows them.

They really felt for the old chap (photographed hundreds of times) pottering around in his rose-garden.

On the question of what he does in his spare time Dr. Reynard of Bonn, when he is not outsmarting all the other cunning foxes, does very well indeed—according to public conception.

He prays, he goes to church, he visits his children, he reads and he walks and he rests.

No public relations expert, trying to change the impression of a labyrinthine, ruthless, obstinate, Machiavellian ancient could ask for more than the alternative portrait of roses, grandfatherliness, wisdom and religion.

Union History in the Making

By FRANK DREA

The emerging new force in Canadian labor—the giant public employees union that will be formed next year—is already writing the preamble to new chapter in the history of the union movement.

The new force, the combination of the 32,000-member National Union of Public Service Employees and the 50,000-member National Union of Public Employees, is quietly but thoroughly settling the terms of merger away from the public spotlight.

However, barring an unlikely last-minute rejection, the merger of the two groups will take place next year, giving Canada a strong, powerful all-Canadian union for the first time.

True, the Canadian Brotherhood of Rail, Transport and General Workers pioneered the idea of a national rather than international union, but since the bulk of its members are in the rail field it is now operating in a field of diminishing returns.

At the same time, NUPSE and NUPE, who will combine to form the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), are in an expanding field.

The strength of the new group has already been demonstrated with the absorbing of the Association of Radio and TV Employees of Canada into NUPSE. The merger of the 2,300-member ARTEC into the NUPSE has aroused three broadcast unions, National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians; International Association of Theatrical and Stage Employees and the American Newspaper Guild into protests.

They want the Canadian Labor Congress to void the merger and warn NUPSE to stay out of the broadcast field.

With its eye on the future, the CLC is shying away from any clash with the emerging union that will be the second largest in Canada and within four or five years will pass the United Steelworkers and become the largest labor union.

For the CLC is still wracked by indecision in its approach to bring the French syndicates, the Canadian National Trade Unions, under its wing. The CNTU, with 102,000 members, is the big labor force in Quebec.

However, the craft unions of the CLC, particularly the construction unions, want no part of the syndicates.

They want the CNTU to disband and permit its affiliates to be absorbed in international unions in each jurisdiction. Obviously, the French syndicates are not interested.

When the NUPE - NUPSE merger is completed, watch for the Canadian union to press for a new approach to the syndicates—including a move to bring in the entire CNTU group as part of the CLC.

The cards held by the public employees group are quite good since they are now in a position to warn that unless the CLC begins to change its structure and policies, they might well pull out and form a Canadian labor centre with the syndicates.

The threat of an all-Canadian labor centre competing against the established international unions and the CLC is not an idle one.

Canadian unions, many of them small and independent, now account for more than a quarter of the number of Canadians in organized labor. Many are looking for a new home in an enlarged Canadian union, where resources and talents could be pooled for efficiency.

The chief obstacle to Canadian unionism has always been resources. A Canadian union attempting to operate in an industry like basic steel, autos, rubber, electrical goods, or mining just could not survive one big strike.

But, in fields where strikes are rare—and a matter of a few hours or two or three days even when they occur—a Canadian union could flourish.

With its base in the non-strike fields like hydro-electric commissions, institutions, hospitals and municipal employment, the public employees group will obviously have enough resources to do an effective job for members.

Thus, for the first time Canadian labor has a powerful national union in a position to demand reforms from international unions. CUPE can campaign for the CLC to demand more autonomy for the Canadian section of international unions and for Canadians to have bigger voices in American-based unions.

The emergence of strong independent Canadian unionism will be evident at the next CLC convention in 1964.

U.S. Arms His Nemesis

Ali Next to Go?

By MOHAMMAD F. IMAM
From Lahore, Pakistan

The Communist Chinese border war that caused the political eclipse of India's Defence Minister V. K. Menon is now posing a similar fate for Pakistan's Foreign Minister Mohammad Ali.

U.S. arms shipments to India have been the nemesis of Ali. Although it was Ali who did most of the talking for the Pakistan government in denouncing the aid and suggesting reappraisal of mutual defence pacts, it was also Ali who helped create the treaties.

As prime minister during 1953-1954 Ali negotiated for Pakistan the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and the Central Treaty Organization of the Middle East (CENTO).

If Pakistan pulls out of SEATO it will need a new man to carry out the reversal.

PETER WORTHINGTON Discusses—

From New Delhi

India's most famous woman is not a stay-at-home ornamenting a sari—she's a battler.

Indira Gandhi, Prime Minister Nehru's politically-minded daughter, has been working fanatically to help her father since the death of her husband two years ago.

Though she denies it, rumors still persist that she will someday inherit her father's job as leader of the nation.

"It is idle talk," says Indira with a smile. And she switches the conversation to more immediate problems like how far to trust China—or Pakistan.

Indira, at 45, is a fighter. Her opinions are firm and her courage is undeniable. She was in prison when she was 12 for leading a "child army" against British rule.

No sooner was she married than she was tossed in jail again for agitating for independence; it was a thirteen-month prison honeymoon.

She was in London during the blitz and is a history graduate from Oxford.

At the moment she's head of the Citizens Committee of India. She's the essence of austerity. Her office in the football-stadium-sized red stone presidential building is bare of decorations or comforts.

She wears no makeup and has no jewelry—she's given everything to the national defence fund to be converted into cash for buying guns.

She wears a large old-fashioned man's watch and traditional sari.

I asked her about the many women of India who are contributing their gold bangles, rings and treasured heirlooms. Indira's eyes glittered as she replied: "The poor people are giving everything they've got; it's touching and wonderful."

"But the rich aren't so generous. They're holding back. We must see if we can find some way to encourage them to be generous for the good of their country."

She has a built-in distrust of Pakistan.

She even suggested that Pakistanis were about as trustworthy as the Chinese. "And we know from experience how trustworthy that is!"

She said if Kashmir disputed territory to the north which is mostly Moslem like Pakistan but which is India were partitioned it would mean China would win in Ladakh and "India would be lost."

If Nehru is as suspicious as his daughter there seems little hope for settlement.

But Indira has a mind of her own and is far less passive than her father.

If the women of India follow the lead of this aggressive lady, one can even feel China is in for a rough time.

Vision In Sari

From New Delhi

The pin-up girl of India's Parliament—an exquisite vision in a sari—knits while Nehru talks.

This disturbing new political influence in India's Parliament is Gayatri Devi—the Maharani of Jajpur.

A favorite of the international set, she decided last February to give up the ski slopes of Austria, the beaches at Cannes, the tables at Monte Carlo and run for election in India—and she won with the largest majority of all India's 507 candidates.

She's cut down on her tiger hunting, polo watching and Riviera water-skiing to attend parliamentary sessions regularly.

Though she's a political foe to Nehru, like all patriotic Indians she heeded his call to help the motherland and learned knitting.

Critics—and she has many—say her knitted sweaters go to "Common soldiers who are brigadiers and above."

She's a member of the right wing Swatantra party, called the "Party of Princelings," or the John Birchers of India.

Her husband, the maharaja and member of the Upper House, is a sportsman of note. The Maharani is important and influential in her party, which though small is still second only to Communists in size.

Now with the crisis, Communists are losing or rather have lost public support, and the rightwingers have gained.

And this is the first time the party of princes has ever contested an election.

Next time they will likely be the official opposition.

And the Maharani may become leader.

10,000 Sign Petition For Sweeps

Nearly 10,000 Victorians have signed a petition asking for legalized sweepstakes for Canada, says H. P. Wilson, representative of an organization campaigning for legal sweepstakes.

Operation Sweepstakes, which Mr. Wilson represents, claims to have 300,000 names from people across Canada who support the move.

A private member's bill to legalize sweepstakes, introduced into the House of Commons Nov. 2 by Frank Smith of Calgary, was talked out, said Mr. Wilson.

"But the subject is still a live one," he said. "When conditions are right, it will come up again."

Ontario Doctor Receives Award

WASHINGTON (CP) — First it was cats, then skunks, beaver, raccoons, monkeys and finally humans.

The year was 1940 and Dr. Murray Llewellyn Barr of Belmont, Ont., was hot on the trail of what seemed to be a curious difference in body cells between male and female animals.

BITS OF MATTER

He applied bits of matter of one animal and then another to the microscope. He scraped tissue from the nerve cells of cats; from the stomach muscle and other parts of the bodies of other animals; and later, from the skin of humans.

The years of intensive research by the University of Western Ontario professor paid off. Moving through the scale of animal life, he found females have something extra in

Body Cells Show Sex

RECEIVES AWARD

For discovery of this sex chromatin, which helped solve some of the mystery of why a person of one sex may behave like the opposite sex, Dr. Barr received Thursday night an award of $33,333—$25,000 for his personal use and $8,333 to help further his research.

"I'm delighted but feel very humble," said the bespectacled scientist who fingered a letter telling him he was one of four foreign scientists selected for an award by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in the field of mental retardation research.

Head of the microscopic anatomy department at the University of Western Ontario, Dr. Barr began publishing results of his research on sex chromatin in 1948. By 1952 he had confirmed sex chromatin findings in the cells of numerous female mammals and by 1953 he reached the same conclusions about human females.

Dr. Barr's discovery proved to be a stepping stone in the study of mental deficiency and mongolism. Two other outstanding world figures who carried the 54-year-old doctor's work a step further are Dr. Jerome Lejeune of France and Dr. Joe Hin Tjio of Indonesia. They got similar awards Thursday night. Dr. Lejeune discovered chromosome abnormalities in mongoloids and Dr. Tjio discovered the exact number of chromosomes in man—46.

Missile for Britain Not in U.S. Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Skybolt missile, chosen to be Britain's primary deterrent weapon and a mainstay of the U.S. air force in the mid-1960s, is reported near death as a major project.

No funds for the bomber-launched weapon, which Britain saw as the "salvation" of its deterrent forces, are included in the U.S. defence budget for next year, it was reported.

IWA Boss Cancels Talks with Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP)—The regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) has cancelled talks with Premier Bennett on B.C.'s labor situation because the premier refuses to include IWA vice-presidents.

"In view of the fact that you will not meet with me if I am accompanied by any of my vice-presidents I am left with no alternative but to respectfully decline your invitation."

Premier Bennett suggested talks with Mr. Moore as head of the largest union in the province, Nov. 28.

Mr. Tourist Well Off, Middle Aged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Meet British Columbia's Mr. Tourist: He's middle-aged, sophisticated and moderately wealthy; interested in people and places, disinterested in outdoor recreations such as camping and hunting.

Recreation Minister Westwood drew this profile at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau.

From a survey at border crossing points, Mr. Westwood gave these additional tid-bits:

FROM COAST STATES

More than 70 per cent of the tourists came from Washington, Oregon and California, and of these southern Californians make up half.

Between 45 and 50 per cent are professional men or senior executives; the remainder white collar workers, skilled workers and foremen.

Most of them earn between $7,500 and $12,000 a year. One in five earns more than $12,000. Most travel in couples; and most stay in B.C. two days or less and spend $100.

B.C.'s biggest problem, said Mr. Westwood, is to increase the duration of the tourist's visit.

De Gaulle Chooses Newcomers

Pompidou In

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle Thursday night appointed a new government headed by Premier Georges Pompidou. There are three newcomers.

Maurice Couve de Murville remains as foreign minister.

Most key posts remain unchanged.

Loise Joxe, who as Algerian affairs minister negotiated the Evian agreements ending the Algerian war for independence from France, takes over the new post of administrative reform minister.

Christian Fouchet, former information minister, becomes education minister and Alain Peyrefitte takes over the information portfolio.

Cabinet newcomers are Marc Jaquet, who takes over the public works portfolio from Roger Ducloux, elected president of the Gaullist group in the assembly; Jean Sainteny as minister for ex-servicemen, and Michael Habib-Delouche, secretary of state for foreign affairs.

The cabinet comprised 26 members including Pompidou, compared with 25 formerly.

De Gaulle's appointments came after a prominent Gaullist politician was overwhelmingly elected president (speaker) of the new National Assembly. It met dominated for the first time in history by a one-party majority.

Blast Snuffs Fire

MEDICINE HAT (CP)—A roaring natural gas well fire was snuffed out yesterday when fire fighter Paul (Red) Adair exploded a 150-pound charge of explosives inches above the heart of the blaze.

Flames which shot 100 feet into the prairie sky since last Friday were choked off in the vacuum created by the blast. Work was started immediately to bring escaping gas under control. One spark could set the well on fire again.

Electrical Groups Engineering Branches In Victoria Combined

The amalgamation of two more efficient operation and "we will have just one headquarters, in New York City and just one magazine," Mr. Spratt said.

"The institute will be a medium for developing the professional attitude of electrical engineers," he said.

"Our meetings will be held once a month, probably in the B.C. Hydro building.

"We are interested in having as members anyone who maintains an interest in electrical subjects or who is associated with the electrical industry," he said.

As of Jan. 1, American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Institute of Radio Engineers will become one and will operate under the name American Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, Mr. Spratt said.

The merger will mean a alignment of Pandora so that it curves to meet Government at the point where Cormorant continues to the west. This will provide a future route for Esquimalt-bound traffic.

Colored paving and textured brick will lend variety to the surface of the square. The whole will be set off by an ornamental fountain which is to be the city's centennial gift from the surrounding municipalities.

The provincial government through Capital Improvement District Commission, has indicated that it will contribute a sizable amount towards the cost of building the square.

Next: How we will pay for it.

Gain of Acre

The street closures represent a total gain of nearly one acre of property at no additional cost to the city.

Since purchase of the remaining acre (the city already owns about two acres in the city hall and police station sites and the parking lot where the old market stood) is costing about $400,000, this is a major factor in the economics of the scheme.

Done in 1964

It will take about six months to complete the street closure. Demolition of unwanted buildings should begin in February and be completed by October. Actual construction of the square will begin next fall and should be completed by late summer 1964.

In laying out the square planners have avoided broad sweeps of lawn where people will not mix. In keeping with its use as an urban pedestrian park there will be trees and shrubs, some formal flower gardens and a few patches of grass.

All-Island Group Bureau Tour Aim

An up-island tour to beat the drums for a new all-island tourist publicity agency is to be undertaken by heads of the present Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Directors of the bureau yesterday instructed commissioner William Hawkins to visit up-island centres to sell the idea of a Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau. Founding meeting of the new bureau will be Jan. 17 in Nanaimo.

MEET THURSDAY

An all-island convention is planned in Victoria next Thursday for members of the hotel, motel, restaurant and other tourist industries.

Decision to undertake the tour was made after Mr. Hawkins and others stressed the importance of strong representation at the convention and after some up-island delegates said the new organization will need to be sold.

MAY REDUCE GRANT

Ald. John Cook of Nanaimo said his council is thinking in terms of reducing its grant for tourist publicity purposes to below this year's figure, let alone raising it to the higher sum envisioned in a proposed budget for the Vancouver Island bureau.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

Gov. Dempsey may not know it yet, but promptly at 2:05 p.m. on Dec. 30, Connecticut is going to secede from the union. It's that old issue of states' rights again—the right of freeloading in the Nutmeg State to swipe telecasts of the football Giants' home games from stations outside the National League's blackout area.

Householders and motel operators who have been able to pull in the games from Hartford are in for one hell of a lot if they dial Channel 3 three weeks from Sunday. Instead of the world professional championship between the Giants and, probably, the Packers, they'll get "Editor's Choice" or "Tarzan the Ape-man."

Channel 3 is a Columbia Broadcasting System outlet, and as far as the inter-continental playoff is concerned, the Giants don't live there any more. The title game has belonged to the National Broadcasting Co. for eight years.

There are alternatives, all ugly. A home set can be equipped with a $35 adapter for ultra-high-frequency to bring in the picture on Channel 30 from West Hartford-New Britain. Channel 10 from Providence, or Channel 22 from Springfield, Mass., all UHF stations—but antennae trouble might develop. Failing that, a guy could drive to Philadelphia and hug up a warm saloon. On the whole, civil war seems preferable.

The Mounting Crisis

First word of the mounting crisis came from a Greenwich resident who has been catching the CBS telecasts during the season in a friend's home in Weston. As everybody knows, to win social acceptance in Connecticut a breadwinner must scale his chimney each September and turn the antennae toward Hartford (usually the broken leg will heal by Guy Wawack Day). This big spender in Weston, however, went beyond that and had a special aerial built.

When the Greenwich guy realized Channel 3 wouldn't have the big one, he notified his friend, who is now screaming at his service man to hurry up and convert to UHF and hang the coat.

That's all right for one receiving set, but how about all those motels that have been renting out rooms for the games? Will they have to put an adapter on every set? Weeks ago, for example, the Stratford Motor Inn had more than 30 rooms reserved for the championship.

"I've got news for you," said Sandy Bain, the Stratford host, yesterday. "We've got 600 people come with all 150 rooms sold out and if we don't get UHF by the 30th, I'm a dead man. Actually we've been planning to make the change anyway because I want to try out pay-TV from that experimental station in Hartford. Just a minute, here's the man now."

The Funny Part

He turned from the phone, but his voice came through asking: Channel 30 by Dec. 30? You sure? Then, back on the wire:

"The man says you can put an adapter on a home set for $35, but you might have antenna trouble. You may have to go pretty high for UHF and maybe you'd need boosters and stuff like that. The hill here's safe, but I can't speak for anybody else in the area."

"The funny part of it," said Tom Gallery at NBC, "is that eight years ago the championship game and the Pro Bowl were living on the ground, for nothing. We picked them up on a six-year contract and then took them on for two more years. Now, of course, it's hotter than heroin."

Isn't noticeably funny to fans who can't buy tickets to Yankee Stadium or motel operators who took reservations without realizing the situation. The annual grumble is beginning of the TV policy established by the late Bert Bell.

Time for a Change

Much of the pro game's phenomenal popularity is traceable to Bell's plan for piping out-of-town games back to each team's territory out shutting out the local area on home games. It is sound business, and it would be dishonest to lift the blackout just before the championship game after selling tickets on the basis of no local TV.

However, the title match has achieved a position comparable with the World Series; to be there in person is to enjoy status. Local television doesn't hurt the baseball game and probably wouldn't affect football's.

Changes are the time has come to remove restrictions, or at least relax them, for this one game. If Pete Rozelle, Bell's successor, is reluctant to alter a successful TV policy drastically, he could at least announce a year ahead of time that if the championship game sold out, it would be on the air everywhere. Then nobody would have a holler.

And Why Not?

Duke Has His Innings

LONDON (CP) — "Would you Grace care to inspect the wicket?"

To outsiders it must seem odd that the Duke of Norfolk should be appointed manager of the England cricket team now playing in Australia. But the 54-year-old premier Earl of England is no newcomer to the sports scene.

He has been turning out in cricket charity matches for the last 30 years. A Sunday afternoon at Arundel Castle will see his flannel-clad lordship puffing between wickets in aid of some benevolent fund.

He is also president of the Sussex team and a former president of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the game's ruling body in England.

To racegoers, the Duke is the top-hatted steward who accompanies the Queen about the paddock during Royal Ascot week. He has leased two horses and his sky blue and scarlet racing colors are being seen on Sydney tracks during the tour.

How did he get to be England manager?

The MCC committee, on which the duke sits, was sitting through candidacies' names. "Why don't you go?" "I went home and told my wife and she said 'I would like you to go.' It was as simple as that."

The appointment was a surprising but popular decision. After all, anyone who can organize several hundred blue-bloods for the evacuation should be able to handle a bunch of cricketers.

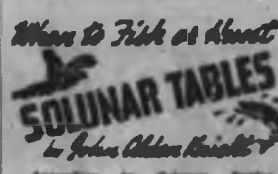

A few years back the duke raised an all-star team for a West Indian tour. "There wasn't a single argument all the time we were there," he says. Colin Ingleby-Mackenzie, boisterous Hampshire skipper and a member of the West Indian tour, says: "He's a great old boy and we thoroughly enjoyed going with him."

The duke refused to be drawn out about possible difficulties with Freddie Trueman, temperamental England bowler and the country's most rebellious cricketer.

However, the duke confessed that players would be calling him "Sir."

"It's not my fault I am a duke—it's just one of those things."

Chiefs Post First Win

Martin Hits 33 Points

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Haida Chiefs, new entry in the league this season, Thursday night scored their first victory in the Inter-City Men's Basketball League by defeating North Vancouver Harlem Nocturnes, 66-60, in a penalty-filled game which saw five of the losers banished before it was completed.

Centre Norris Martin, for mer UBC star who played with Tillsonburg Livingstons before coming to Victoria, was the standout player on the floor, collecting 33 of Victoria's points.

The fast, evenly-contested game was tied several times. Chiefs led by 33-31 at half-time but couldn't pull away to any reasonably safe lead until the late minutes, when Nocturnes found themselves weakened by the loss of players.

Playing-coach John Braithwaite was banished in the first half for using improper language, and was followed to the sidelines in the second half by teammates Paul Winn, George Stulak, Emery Barnes and Frank Gilliam.

The first three fouled out while Gilliam was put off for abusive language. Darrell Lorrimer of the Chiefs also fouled out.

It was the first defeat of the season for Nocturnes, and

BERNIE GEOFFRION

Howe Still Strongest Wing

As Detroit Defeats Bruins

Time may be running out on Gordie Howe, but there's little sign of it so far this National Hockey League season.

Howe, less than four months away from his 35th birthday, once more rallied Detroit Red Wings last night to pave the way for a 5-3 win over Boston's hard-trying Bruins.

With less than 15 minutes left to play and the Wings trailing by 1-3, Howe set up linemate Parker MacDonald for a power play goal, then came back to tie the score only 32 seconds later as he deftly steered Marcel Pronovost's slap shot past Bob Perreault.

A couple of youngsters did the real, rookie Doug Barkley setting up rookie Bruce MacGregor for what proved to be the winning goal with less than four minutes left.

Bruins got a late chance when Alex Delvecchio drew a penalty at 18:14 but veteran

Marcel Pronovost clinched it in the last minute by firing into an empty net for Detroit's fifth goal.

Only 7,761 fans, Detroit's smallest crowd since 1951, braved a snow storm to watch the game, which put the Wings in second place and only one point out of the lead.

Howe's goal was his 10th of the season, and the 478th of his NHL career, putting him within 65 goals of Maurice Richard's all-time high of 544 goals. The assist the right-winger got was this 12th of the season and his 22 points put him within three of the individual scoring leadership.

It was Howe's 1,003rd league game and his all-time point total now stands at 1,071.

Shawnigan Laker Wins in Stretch

DUNCAN (Special) — Shawnigan Lake School runner Mark Gibson put on a stretch burst of speed to win the mid-island scholastic cross-country race here Thursday.

Chilly Dip At Christmas

Deadline for entries for the annual Christmas Day Inner Harbor swim is set for Dec. 13.

If sufficient entries come in, the race will start at 11 on Christmas morning. Entries should be directed to J. McCague, 3106 Glasgow.

Gibson nipped Victoria High School's Alan Vallant by two seconds in winning the race, contested by 36 runners from five schools over a five-mile course.

Gibson's time was 25 minutes, 34 seconds. Vallant's time was 25:36 and the next three, in order, were Earl Speakman, Victoria, 25:43; Jeremy Long, Shawnigan Lake, 26:11; and Kevin McCullough, Victoria, 26:16.

Victoria High won the team event with 16 points. Others, in order in a reverse scoring system, were Shawnigan Lake, 27; Cowichan 56; Brentwood 60; and Nanaimo 66.

Only Richest Hunters Get Game in France

PARIS (OFNS) — Close on steadily increasing. Grateful guests are only too willing to grant what favors they can. One aristocratic landowner candidly admitted the other day that he intended to use the services of one of the country's best lawyers by inviting him to a weekend shooting party.

Shooting remains exceptionally popular in France and the High Council for Hunting and the local Hunting Federations are doing their best to breed game. But successful shooting parties have become the privilege of the rich and their friends.

They own or rent the best private reserves, employ gamekeepers all the year round, and import birds, mostly from Hungary and Czechoslovakia for breeding. France spent almost $2,000,000 on these purchases during the winter.

Invitations are hard to come by, and the value of a private shoot to a businessman is

The right-wing daily newspaper L'Aurore and the Communist L'Humanite have just examined this sad state of affairs and suggested different solutions. L'Humanite, observing that a raw deal for the poor was typical of the capitalist French society, concluded with an appeal for something like a hunting revolution.

Swim Club Sets Meet

Victoria Amateur Swim Club holds its fall season windup gala at Crystal Garden pool Monday night and will attempt to set records in 10 events.

Those are: Girls 10 and under 50-yard backstroke; boys 11 and 12 50-yard freestyle and 50-yard backstroke; girls 13 and 16 50-yard freestyle, 50-yard backstroke and 400-yard freestyle relay; and boys 13 and 16 50-yard freestyle, 50-yard backstroke and 200-yard medley relay.

Learners start at 6:15, races begin at 7 and diving at 8:30.

L'Aurore, more practical, suggests that the penniless huntsman should develop a reputation as an excellent shot. Many of the rich are apparently hand-flattened when it comes to handling a gun, and wealthy hosts like to make certain of a reasonable bag. Renowned marksmen can therefore obtain invitations to private game reserves.

They are treated like poor relations and tend to develop an occasional fear of an off-day. A host may also be offended and stop inviting a marksman who is too good.

But the only alternative to this precarious form of access to good hunting, it seems, is to get rich.

Red O'Quinn Given Terlep's Old Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference announced Thursday night they have signed John Red O'Quinn, former Montreal Alouette end, to a three-year contract as general manager.

The 37-year-old graduate of Wake Forest College replaced George Terlep whose resignation earlier Thursday night was termed "a magnificent gesture" by Riders' president J. Barry O'Brien.

Terlep, appointed to the general-manager's job in 1960, had one season left to run on a three-year contract. It was reported unofficially that his settlement with the club included full payment for unfinished portion of the contract plus a bonus.

Weeks of speculation about discussion in the club's front office between Terlep and Riders' coach Frank Clair preceded Thursday night's announcement.

O'Brien said friction between the two had put the club in an "untenable situation." However, he said, the club had put "no pressure on Terlep to resign." Asked if it had been a case of getting rid of one of the two men, O'Brien said: "I wouldn't put it quite as bluntly as that."

The club announced the resignation of Terlep at one press conference and 90 minutes later announced the hiring of O'Quinn at a second scheduled meeting with reporters.

At the first press conference O'Brien said Terlep "helped the club solve a tough problem by his resignation."

He said club officials had become aware of the bad feelings between the general manager and his head coach too late to correct it.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

The most likely place to get fish this weekend is in Saanich Inlet, all the way from Tod Inlet to Goldstream Island, and with anything from planer and wire line to bucktail fly.

The salmon are there, all the way from one and two-pound grilse up to 20-pound winter spring.

Tod Inlet and along the wall to Whittaker Point has been the hot spot for Jacksprings and winter springs. A planer, 100 to 150 feet of wire line, small strip or minnow seems to be the right combination for Tod Inlet and Wall fishermen. Best of the week in those waters has been Art Midlane with a 20-10-pounder on small strip Sunday and Doug Parks with a 19-12-pounder.

Jacksprings are fairly plentiful and boats are averaging two fish.

John Gordon, fishing with Earl, his wheel-chair fisherman father, landed a 13-9-pounder in Tod Inlet and between them they have been getting lots of seven to nine pounders. John uses the heavy gear and Earl lighter gear.

Six to seven feet of leader behind a flasher has been a good combination.

In the Whittaker Point to Boulder waters small spoons and four to six ounces of weight have been picking up the bigger grilse and the Boulder-McKenzie Bay area has provided bucktail fly fishing.

The grilse are scattered all over Finlayson Arm from Goldstream Island to the White Lady and Stone House and green and white and light blue and white bucktails are working well. But it is an on and off and off the next proposition. It fell off on Sunday, came back again Wednesday.

Sooke to Victoria waterfront has been too stormy for anything but sketchy reports, but should be worth a try. Crofton has been good for grilse on Tom Mack and McKnight spoons, small planer and 80 to 100 feet of line.

Freshwater fishing is off because of floods, but those who find a dropping river clear enough to fish may hit some tremendous steelhead. Any river is worth trying for steelhead now, as soon as they are approachable.

Bucky Kennett reports the Cowichan is still in flood and so muddy it looks like coffee with milk in it. It is still high at the top end.

Sooke and the Port Renfrew Rivers should be among the first to drop to fishing levels.

They have been getting fair sized steelies in the Ash and Stamp Rivers, the odd one silvery, but most discolored summer runs. China Creek is picking up.

In the Big and Little Qualicum the water is still high and muddy, but as in all rivers now there is pretty good cutthroat fishing at the mouths, if you can get at them.

Lakes are starting to drop off, but Cowichan Lake, especially the Bear Lake offshoot, is still worth a try.

Hendry, Watts, Robinson Win Election in Oak Bay

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

There were few surprises in municipal balloting in Oak Bay last night when two in-

Esquimalt

Lock Heads Polls

By BOB PETHICK

Three victory smiles and a grin of accomplishment decorated the faces of four Esquimalt candidates last night when the final count was in.

Victory smiles were from the three incumbents, Couns. James Bryant (669), E. L. De Costa (800) and Walter Lock (112) — the grin was from candidate E. Cassels who succeeded in preventing an acclamation and polling a creditable 372 votes.

ONE SURPRISE

Possibly one of the biggest surprises was the popular vote which went to rookie councillor Walter Lock, running for his first full term on council.

Coun. Lock beat out veteran councillor James Bryant by 143 votes — but this did not bother Coun. Bryant.

"People have the right to vote as they choose," said Coun. Bryant. "I've headed the polls five out of seven times, and I think that's a pretty good record."

WELL HANDLED

"The people of Esquimalt feel their affairs are being handled well," he said.

Candidate Cassels was happy even in defeat.

"Like General MacArthur, I shall return," he quipped.

He recently told The Daily Colonist one of his reasons for running was to force an election as he believed "acclamation was stagnation."

GOOD SHOWING

"We got the voters out," said Mr. Cassels. "I'm pleased I made such a good showing."

Earlier a seat as school trustee in the municipality was filled by acclamation by D. E. Hookham.

Cast
Ballots

Weather yesterday was nearly ideal for voting with sunshine in the morning and light clouds in the afternoon, but only 40,000 people in the Greater Victoria area turned out.

Here is the individual picture: Saanich—Steady voting all day. Thirty-five per cent cast ballots, 55 per cent against amalgamation.

Oak Bay—At 4 p.m. only 12.66 per cent had voted. Turnout was lightest here—25.94 per cent, compared to 45.1 per cent last year.

Esquimalt—Light turnout. Final figures showed 1,403 of the eligible voters, 35.58 per cent.

Central Saanich—A number of farmers and retired people voted during the day, with the total reaching 36 per cent.

Sidney—A brisk morning vote fell off in the afternoon. Thirty-seven per cent turned out.

cumbents and one of two favored newcomers won the three council seats up for election in light balloting.

In voting for one Oak Bay seat on the Greater Victoria school board, Dr. Carlton B. Jameson, a dentist, ousted incumbent W. Ralph Freethy, 1,237 to 906.

LEADING CHOICES

Incumbents John D. Watts and Fred Robinson, with 1,407 and 1,299 votes, took the top two places in voting for council. Alex Hendry, a lumber company executive, polled 1,198 to capture the seat previously occupied by Fred Hawes who did not seek re-election.

Other favored newcomer, John P. Johnson, placed fourth with 924 votes. Four other candidates were far behind.

OTHER COUNTS

In council balloting, William James Cull, retired, had 423 votes; plumber Joseph McAllister 394; postal clerk G. F. Kenny 330, and Conrad L. R. Watling, a private investigator, 267.

"It was about what I expected," Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said last night. "When the councillors are doing a good job you don't vote them out."

Councillor-elect Hendry had little to say about his election except that "I guess I've got more friends in Oak Bay than I thought I had."

He said he had anticipated trouble in beating Mr. Johnson.

He said he would work for greater financial aid by the province to municipalities than now is given under per-capita grants. He also feels the province should accept a greater share of the school financial burden.

Central Saanich yesterday voted 406 to 168 in favor of a new $40,000 municipal hall to be built at the southwest corner of Mount Newton Cross Road and Wallace Drive. Existing hall is at Saanichton.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee and three councillors — Thomas Mitchell, Albert Hemstreet and Albert Vickers — were re-elected by acclamation as there was no opposition to their posts.

LARGE MARGIN

Reeve Lee said the 70 per cent margin of votes in favor of the $40,000 hall made him feel very happy.

"Not many bylaws pass by that margin. I guess most people realize we have to face the future."

Central Saanich Favors New Hall

Here is the breakdown of votes on the money bylaw: Saanichton—125 yes, 50 no; 67 per cent in favor.

Keating—70 yes, 44 no; 62 per cent in favor.

Brentwood—211 yes, 65 no; 76 per cent in favor.

Thirty-six per cent of 1,598 eligible voters turned out — 574. In 1961, 35 per cent went to the polls.

Construction of the new hall will start next October, Reeve Lee told The Colonist. The municipality plans to have the hall built mainly under the winter works program. So far, $450 has been spent on planning the hall.

Sidney Backs Parks, More Land

Sidney voters yesterday voted in favor of dedication of park land and extension of boundaries by 10 to one margins but defeated the referendum asking for a library by a narrow three per cent edge.

J. E. Boshier was re-elected with 291 votes as commissioner, and Laurence Christian — a newcomer — got in with 207 votes. J. H. Larocque, former incumbent lost his seat with 182 votes.

NEW TRUSTEE

New school trustee in Sidney — the village has a new trusteeship transferred from James Island — is Gordon Campbell with 136 votes. Defeated were T. A. Aiers and Frank Richards, both with 103 votes each.

Park land referendum—Yes 330, No 35.

Extension of boundaries referendum—Yes 312, No 35.

Library referendum—Yes 199, No 150 (57 per cent; 60 is needed).

Total ballots cast were 378 — 37 per cent—of 1,026 eligible voters; last year participation

Young Sailors' Given Awards

OS D. Kuster and OS E. R. Gilmore both led their respective classes in training at HMCS Naden and recently were presented with bosun's calls.

stood at 42 per cent.

Comments and plans from the winners: Commissioner Boshier wants a new municipal building containing health and police quarters.

BREAKWATER Commissioner-elect Christian is all for a new breakwater to protect yearly storm damage to the Sidney wharf. Estimated repair costs to the wharf run to about $45,000 a year, while a breakwater would come to about $300,000.

New trustee Campbell is going back to school as a teacher and will strive for best possible education of the students.

Village commissioners expressed disappointment over the defeat of the library referendum.

Big Qualicum Fish Farm Threatened

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Floodwaters on the Big Qualicum River are threatening the $1,245,000 fish farming experiment, and two more days of heavy rains could wash out fish counting fences in the lower reaches.

Debris in Horne Lake has blocked the tunnel outlet. Water has resumed its old flow at the entrance to the Big Qualicum River and water is backing up the tunnel from the river.

SAVING FACTOR

Fisheries officials say that only the newly-built Hunt's Creek diversion has saved a major disaster.

Workers have labored through the night to keep screens clear in the counting fences.

Thousands of fish are waiting to go up the Big Qualicum to spawn, but are held by the strong currents in the six-mile-long river.

Divers are at work trying to clear the debris from the tunnel, but they face the problem of the water backing up the tunnel. The tunnel will have to be cleared before they can complete the job.

Heavy floods this year are what fisheries officials had feared most.

MIT SNAG

They hit a snag this summer when a hydro tower toppled into Horne Lake when the water was lowered to make way for the damming of the outlet of the Big Qualicum at the lake to provide a catch basin for flood waters.

There was a two-acre slide into Horne Lake and lakeside footings became weak.

A second tower threatened to topple and a temporary hydro line to serve the big industries of Port Alberni was constructed.

LEVEL HELD

The level of Horne Lake was maintained and the flow-controlled program at Big Qualicum, first of its kind in the world, was curtailed, until B.C. Hydro decided upon a permanent power line, which it has not yet done.

It had been hoped to draw the lake down 20 more feet to provide flood storage. There is only a major flood every 10 years on the average and fisheries officials gambled and have nearly lost part of that gamble.

NEW GAMBLE

The gamble now is that there will be no major rainfalls within the next couple of days and that the river will go down enough to allow normal spawning and river control.

Rocky Point

Bus Loss Seems Certain

Loss of free bus service to Rocky Point for department of national defence employees now seems a certainty, with April 1 the cutoff date, according to Frank Cammide, spokesman for the Rocky Point employees committee.

Veteran Stages Ltd. manager Brian Sylvester, when asked if his company would be providing transportation, said, "It has been discussed. There's nothing definite."

DRIVERS ABORDED

Mr. Cammide said, "We were told the navy called in the bus drivers and told them there would be a stoppage. The word was that the policy had been laid down and would take effect April 1."

"The bus drivers are to be kept on," he said, "and slowly absorbed elsewhere."

Mr. Sylvester said he understood that Rocky Point was not the only area affected. "It's a general change from Ottawa that will take place all across the country," he said.

The Rocky Point employees committee was formed early in the fall to protest the proposed discontinuation of free bus service to the arsenal.

PLAN SCORED

In a brief presented to Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton early in October the committee scored a government plan to turn the transportation over to a private company and charge employees $5 each per month.

The brief charged "it would be morally wrong" to deduct any money from civil servants whose pay was already pegged.

It also claimed that "transportation was a fringe benefit" because it was promised when the magazine was moved from Colwood to Rocky Point some years ago.

Mr. Chatterton acknowledged the brief about a month ago and said "there had been no decision made by the treasury board" at that time.

Peace-Keeping Cost Shift Urged

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Latin American spokesmen sought Thursday to shunt an even heavier share of United Nations peace-keeping costs on such major powers as the United States and Britain and on other highly developed countries.

Argentina's Raul Quijano stressed in the UN General Assembly's budgetary committee that a newly-introduced resolution sponsored by 19 Latin American countries accepts the World Court's advisory opinion that peace-keeping costs should be levied on all UN members.

GROUND RULES

The resolution also urges, however, the appointment of a 21-member working committee to establish a basis of assessment under ground rules that observers feel would ease the financial pain on Latin American members.

Quijano said the working group should take into consideration the special responsibility of the permanent members of the Security Council—the U.S., Britain, France, Russia and Nationalist China—to contribute to such operations.

BIG SHAKE

UN sources noted those countries are already assessed more than 67 per cent of the costs and in any case the Soviet Union has refused to pay anything to either the UN Congo force or the UN Emergency Force in the Middle East. France won't chip in for The Congo.

Expropriate Canadian Power Firm?

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Anti-Communist Governor Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara state Thursday took legal steps to expropriate the Canadian-owned Brazilian Tracton Power Co. His action seemed calculated to embarrass the leftist Goulart administration on the eve of a government aid-seeking mission to the United States.

Lacerda, an outspoken champion of the free enterprise system, asked federal power authorities to declare the company's franchise, which expires in 1965, "forfeited to failure to provide stipulated service at stipulated rates."

She Channels Cat-Call And Station Goes Phhh

MIAMI (UPI)—With a simple "Phhh," Mrs. Ady Jacobs can change stations on her television set.

"I don't whistle 'Tweet,'" Mrs. Jacobs said. "I suck in air and go 'Phhh.'"

The set is rigged for remote control, but Mrs. Jacobs does not have the remote unit.

This remote control set is operated by a high-frequency sound," said TV serviceman Dwight Faroe. "A dog whistle can do it, or sometimes you can change stations by jingling some keys up close to the set."

He offered to adjust the set so a "Phhh" would not change it. But Mrs. Jacobs wanted things just the way they were.

Alcan Unveils Proposal For Kitimat Pulp Mill

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd. Thursday night unveiled plans for an $80,000,000 pulp and paper complex at Kitimat.

The complex would include a pulp mill with a daily capacity of 500 tons of bleached and unbleached kraft, a newsprint mill with an annual capacity of 140,000 tons and a lumber mill with an annual capacity of 33,000,000 board feet.

Kitimat, on Douglas Channel, 405 air miles northwest of Vancouver, now is heavily dependent on Alcan's aluminum smelter works.

The meeting was called by deputy lands minister E. W. Bassett to allow applicants to argue their cases.

OTHER APPLICATION Parker Bonney, a timber consultant for Alcan, said early establishment of a mill at Kitimat was feasible and necessary. "We now have sound reasons for believing that development can take place in the near future."

Log booming and storage facilities in the area are largely limited to Minette Bay, northeast of the town, and Clio Bay, about six miles south.

Christmas begins early for 207 officer cadets at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads—after their studies are over.

Yuletide Begins On Dec. 14

Christmas begins early for 207 officer cadets at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads—after their studies are over.

Today to Dec. 14 the cadets will be knotting their heads over mid-term examinations, the first for 125 junior cadets who started training last September.

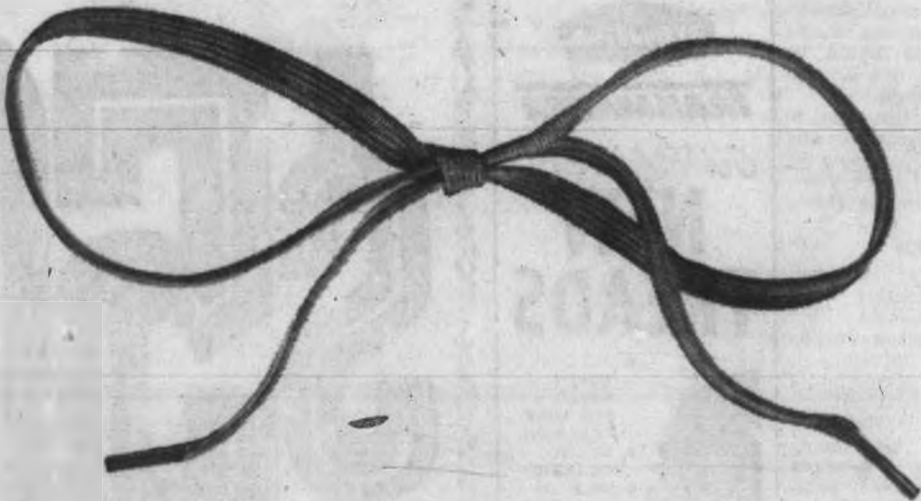

At noon, Dec. 14, the cadets' table will groan with turkey and trimmings, for this will be their Christmas dinner. In the afternoon there will be a junior vs. senior hockey game at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

CHRISTMAS BALL

The Christmas Ball will be held Dec. 15. Next night, at 8 p.m., the cadet choir will present the annual Christmas carol service in the entrance hall of Hatley Castle.

Christmas leave begins Dec. 17. Some cadets will go as far as the Maritimes to spend the holiday season with their families.

They will be back at Royal Roads Jan. 3. Training resumes the next day.

Paint First?

City Lawyers
To Inspect Jail

The city lockup will be open to inspection by city lawyers, and a John Howard Society representative already has taken a look behind the bars, it was learned yesterday.

"We received a letter from the city police commission two days ago which said the commission would at the first opportunity accompany us on a tour of the city jail, possibly early in 1963," said lawyer David Hummel, member of a committee.

Asked for Time

It is expected the lockup will receive a new coat of paint before the scheduled inspection tour, The Daily Colonist learned from reliable sources.

Earlier last week city police commission asked for time to consider the request and temporarily turned down the Victoria Bar Association's application.

"It's an open secret—rather not a secret at all—that some improvements in the city lockup are necessary," said lawyer Rodney Taylor, past president (1956 to 1961) of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island.

(The society—among other things—is concerned with conditions in jails all over Canada.)

VICTOR WILLIAMS
... firm decisions neededELMER MCEWEN
... his apathy

However, what was refused temporarily to the lawyer's committee last week was immediately granted to Murray Gaw, executive director of the society, Mr. Taylor said.

"Two or three days ago Mr. Gaw was shown through the lockup after the police commission agreed to the society's request. It is a step in the right direction," he said.

Delighted

Mr. Hummel said he is "delighted" to have seen the lockup. "If there are any of the allegations we are looking forward to making recommendations to the police commission."

These allegations have it that all's not so well in the lockup. It seems many prisoners have complained for some time about:

- Not enough privacy for lawyers talking to their clients.
- First offenders not separated from hardened criminals.
- "Drunk tank" not separated from other cells.
- Meals often inadequate.
- Delay in obtaining showers and towels.
- Unsanitary conditions.

The bar commission feels these complaints might be exaggerated and wholly without substance but would like, just the same, to investigate for itself, Mr. Hummel said earlier.

In Writing

The John Howard Society is not wholly satisfied, however. Representatives of the society saw Mayor R. B. Wilson in October this year, said Mr. Taylor, "who asked us to make an application in writing if we wanted to see the lockup."

"We expected to be asked to appear before the police commission but we weren't invited. We will approach the chairman of the commission again."

He was quite friendly with Dootson, he said, and the accused had "discussed quite a bit (about) robberies ... he was quite interested in committing some robberies."

"A robbery (discussed) involved the Black Ball Ferry and the Empress Hotel and was a million dollars," he testified.

Mr. Van Heck said that in the $1,000,000 robbery Dootson said he "would have to kill someone—an old man who carried the money in a satchel—but he didn't mind that."

He said he'd inspected the bar by picking it up at one end with one finger because he "knew by that time that Mr. Dootson was quite serious and I didn't want to have my fingerprints on it."

He had been shown the iron bar during conversations regarding another staff member who was known to carry fairly large sums of money, Mr. Van Heck testified.

At another time, he had been asked by the accused "about a zip-gun ... I told him he could make it out of a 22 rifle or almost any rifle by cutting it down."

Later, Dootson had shown him a "lever-action rifle" but "I told him it was too nice a rifle to cut down."

Earlier testimony at the hearing was that Dootson purchased a rifle from another staff member, then sold it later.

Under cross-examination from Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Van Heck admitted that he had cut down 22 rifle for Dootson.

He also said that he "realized (Dootson's) intention of injuring or hitting someone" but had not told anyone in authority.

He became "kinda scared" and shut the door (to his room), he said.

He lay down for 10 minutes, then heard water running in a washroom.

He testified he then got up and opened the door and "saw Dootson standing in the hallway in the vicinity of the washrooms." The accused had no shirt on, and was wearing tan pants.

Other staff members gathered and Mr. Robinson was found in his smoke-filled room.

Under intensive cross-examination by Mr. Bigelow, psychiatric aide Kenneth Dickinson admitted that Colquhoun was a hospital for the "criminally insane."

Chief W. A. Pearson ... appalling attitude

NEW APPROACH NEEDED

Robert Baird, 1310 May, an investment counsellor, said he would like to see the transit takeover study pressed forward with all possible speed. He also wants the present system replaced by the "more modern" approach used by a board of directors.

"Our elected members would sit around a table and discuss things rather than more or less bombard each other as they do now," said Mr. Baird.

Cecil Parrott, a former school trustee and civic employee for 10 years until his retirement in 1957, said he was willing to devote his full time to city council business. He lives at 1005 Finlayson.

Court Told of Choking,
'Million-Dollar Theft'

By DON MATHESON

Tales of a mental patient choked unconscious, plans for a $1,000,000 Victoria robbery, and the search for a "zip gun" unfolded in Saanich police court yesterday.

Details were disclosed in testimony at the preliminary hearing of an attempted murder charge against Peter Howard Dootson, a psychiatric nurse's aide at Colquhoun Mental Home.

Psychiatric nurse William H. Higgs testified that Dootson's treatment of patients had been "on the sadistic side" after he had been injured in an automobile accident about a year ago.

Mr. Higgs was asked by prosecutor Kenneth Murphy

how the treatment had been "sadistic."

"By pushing a patient around unnecessarily ... like putting a towel around a patient's neck and choking him until he was unconscious," Mr. Higgs testified.

The patient was "a Doukhobor—just a young fellow," Mr. Higgs added.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Alan Bigelow, Mr. Higgs said he had not seen the incident from 30 feet away. Other hospital workers had been present, Mr. Higgs said.

"The way I get it, nobody did anything about this poor Doukhobor (patient being choked)," Mr. Bigelow asked.

"No," Mr. Higgs testified. Dootson is charged with attempting to murder 64-year-old Robert Robinson Oct. 19 by hitting him with a blunt instrument and then setting fire to him in the staff quarters at the mental home.

A former psychiatric aide, Dootson was transferred from Vancouver, where he had been arrested after having a robbery plans he said Dootson entertained, and the "zip-gun" incidents.

Robbery... $1,000,000

Dootson planned to go back to Jamaica, where he had spent some holidays, and that was "part of his motive" for the robbery, Mr. Van Heck testified.

In regard to Mr. Robinson, still recovering in hospital, Dootson had said "he was going to get even with the old ... before he left," Mr. Van Heck testified.

That was said some three or four weeks before the Oct. 19 incident, Mr. Van Heck said. Robinson retired Oct. 14, but planned to stay in the staff quarters until the end of the month.

Mr. Van Heck, once a policeman in Eastern Canada, said Dootson once asked him where "to hit a person to knock him out."

He said he'd told the accused to hit behind an ear.

Then Dootson had showed him an iron bar that he kept "under the head of the bed" and Mr. Van Heck told him, "My God, if you ever hit a man on the head with that you'd kill him," he testified.

Didn't Want Prints on It

He said he'd inspected the bar by picking it up at one end with one finger because he "knew by that time that Mr. Dootson was quite serious and I didn't want to have my fingerprints on it."

He had been shown the iron bar during conversations regarding another staff member who was known to carry fairly large sums of money, Mr. Van Heck testified.

At another time, he had been asked by the accused "about a zip-gun ... I told him he could make it out of a 22 rifle or almost any rifle by cutting it down."

Later, Dootson had shown him a "lever-action rifle" but "I told him it was too nice a rifle to cut down."

Earlier testimony at the hearing was that Dootson purchased a rifle from another staff member, then sold it later.

Under cross-examination from Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Van Heck admitted that he had cut down 22 rifle for Dootson.

He also said that he "realized (Dootson's) intention of injuring or hitting someone" but had not told anyone in authority.

"Everyone was scared of him ... I was scared of him ... I didn't exactly feel at ease with him," Mr. Van Heck said.

He said he started "staying away" from Dootson when "I realized he meant to do business with this bar (iron bar)."

A few days before the early morning when the victim was injured, Mr. Van Heck said, Dootson had told him that he "needed money and needed it bad and didn't care how he got it," and that he had planned to break into a service station.

The night of the incident, he had been in bed when he heard screams.

'Kinda Scared, Shut Door'

He became "kinda scared" and shut the door (to his room), he said.

He lay down for 10 minutes, then heard water running in a washroom.

He testified he then got up and opened the door and "saw Dootson standing in the hallway in the vicinity of the washrooms." The accused had no shirt on, and was wearing tan pants.

Other staff members gathered and Mr. Robinson was found in his smoke-filled room.

New Arrival
Loses $335
Downtown

A Vancouver woman yesterday lost a roll of bills totaling $335 in downtown Victoria.

Mrs. Lorraine Warbette, who came to Victoria with her young son only a few days ago looking for work, had just spent the money out at the bank after having it transferred from Vancouver, when she lost it.

She noticed it missing shortly after coming out of a restaurant near Douglas and Yates Streets.

Anyone finding the money can return it to Mrs. Warbette at 750 Queen, Suite 4. She has offered a reward.

No Meetings Sighted

City Election Drive Starts

With six days to go until voting day Victoria's civic election campaign at last sputtered into lifelike life.

Two last-minute entries before nominations closed at 2 p.m. yesterday brought the number of candidates seeking the four available seats on city council to seven.

Three candidates are in the race for two school board seats.

LITTLE INTEREST

Several candidates expressed concern at the prospect of no election meetings at all during the current campaign which so far has raised little if any public interest.

No meetings have been announced and the chance for candidates to air their views from a platform appear slim at this time.

A spokesman for Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, which in the past has sponsored an election forum in the city, said it was decided this year in view of the lack of interest to switch to Saanich where amalgamation has been a hotly debated issue.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, Ald. Austin Curtis and Ald. A. W. Toone are seeking re-election to council. Both school board incumbents, Mrs. E. M. Maunsell and Ralph Fryer, are also running again.

The lack of interest in Victoria was evident in the statements by aldermanic candidates who have entered the city council race in the past two days.

Victor Williams, 1623 Davie, a company director, attacked the present city council for its vacillating "on-again-off-again-Finnegan" attitudes when firm policy decisions are required on such vital issues as Blanshard Street extension.

"This has even shown up in Ald. Arthur Dowell's decision to seek re-election after saying that he would stand down," said Mr. Williams.

He was sworn in as a candidate by city clerk Frank Hunter as the city hall tower clock chimed the hour for closing of nominations. Mr. Williams has on two previous occasions tried unsuccessfully to win a seat on council.

MAKING NEW BID

Fifteen minutes earlier former alderman Elmer McEwen filed his nomination papers in a bid for a third term on city council. Mr. McEwen, 1008 Newport, a restaurant manager, resigned his seat two years ago after serving four years as an alderman.

Main reason for his return to the civic arena, said Mr.

McEwen, was the almost total lack of interest in council affairs shown by Victoria businessmen. "Victoria has been good to me and this is one way I can do something for the city," he said.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: As a minister who has officiated at more than 600 funerals I would like to add my voice to your disapproval of flashbulb pictures and movies at funeral parlors.

Such barbarism has developed because we have become apathetic toward our Hebrew and Christian teachings. We have permitted undertakers to Egyptianize our techniques of disposing of the dead. Instead of exalting the spirit, we like the ancient Pharaohs, glorify the body. We lavish it with cosmetics and place it on display.

Too often a grief-stricken family, overcome by emotional strain will go deep into debt for an expensive casket and all the trimmings. It's almost as if they are attempting to make up to the deceased for what they failed to do during his lifetime.

One day, when our values have truly matured, we will abandon these primitive customs which serve no purpose.

D.L. Dear D.L.: Many thanks for your civilized letter. I agree that lavish funerals do nothing for the one who has departed this life. He neither hears the music, smells the flowers, nor does he see the satin-lined, silver-handled casket.

The living need love, kindness and understanding. The dead need only our prayers.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 22 years old and have never been so head-over-heels in love in my life. I'm walking on air. Ann. The man is 30, has beautiful wavy hair and a perfect build.

I want to marry him and he is begging me to say yes, but I am not quite ready to make the leap because of three things:

(1) He drinks a little too much and sometimes forgets where I live, where he parked the car, where he put his wallet, etc.

(2) He likes to job-hop. He has no trouble getting a job, but after a few months he becomes bored and quits.

(3) He teases me a lot which is very cute—says things that aren't true just to get my reaction. Later he tells me he was only fooling.

St. Martin's Realizes Sum of $300

The sum of $300 was realized at the annual Christmas bazaar and tea held recently by the evening branch of the Women's Auxiliary to St. Martin's Church in the parish hall. Holly and seasonal motifs decorated the hall and tea tables were centred with cones and cypress sprays. Mrs. J. Vickers welcomed guests. Mrs. W. Rowe was general convener and Mrs. S. Averill was co-convener.

In charge of tea arrangements was Mrs. A. Gray and tea tickets were looked after by Miss Betty Gillingwater.

SERVITEURS Acting as serviteurs were Mrs. G. New, Mrs. R. Parker, Mrs. G. Spark, Mrs. J. Buckmaster, Miss A. Stacken. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. S. Averill, Miss C. Cooke, Miss D. Stacken and Mrs. P. Salmon.

In charge of the sewing stall were Mrs. M. Groves, Mrs. W. Neilson, assisted by Mrs. G. Gandy, Mrs. D. Denton, Mrs. N. Adamson; home cooking, Mrs. B. P. Harding and Mrs. F. McGarrick, Mrs. D. Coel and Mrs. C. Parker; plants, Mrs. C. Rife, Mrs. N. Life; white elephant, Mrs. J. W. Atkinson and Mrs. L. R. Dunkley.

Honored at Shower

LADYSMITH—Miss Dean Margaret Bredenberg, RN,

whose marriage takes place on Dec. 29, at St. John's Anglican Church, was feted at a miscellaneous shower by her nursing associates and friends, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregson.

Miss Bredenberg, with her sister Jane, who will be her maid of honor, and her mother, Mrs. Christopher Bredenberg, received courages of hand-made satin rosebuds. Gifts were presented from a decorated basket. There were some 40 guests.

Miss Bredenberg has been on the nursing staff of Ladysmith General Hospital since graduating from Port Arthur General Hospital earlier this year. She is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bredenberg of this city. Her fiancé is Mr. Paul Thompson Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schmidt, Port Arthur, Ont.

After their marriage the young couple will reside in the east where Mr. Schmidt is attending Western University at London, Ont. He is a student of languages, with teaching as a career.

Mrs. Badni Will Speak Of Christmas

Mrs. James Badni will speak on the origins of Christmas customs throughout the world and the pupils in French from Westernham School will sing carols at the Alliance Française Christmas Tea on Monday, Dec. 10, at 8 p.m. in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Mrs. Agnes Burr, Rapid City, Man., announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen Isabel, to Mr. Robert Keith Dinsdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Dinsdale, Waddington, Yorkshire, England. The wedding will take place in Centennial United Church on Saturday, Dec. 22, at 2 p.m. (Just-Rite)

Veronica Milton Guest Soloist

At the Junior Musical Arts Society Rosemary Fryer opened with the playing of "O Canada." The following members played piano solos: Mary Lou Foster, Janet McCandlish, Bruce Fryer, Lois Pepper, Joan McCandlish, and Cheryl Richards. Mary Howland played an oboe solo, accompanied by Joan McCandlish. Bette Cosar, accompanied by Carolyn Grace Heal, sang two vocal selections.

Following a discussion of the instruments of the string section of the symphony orchestra, pictures were placed on the chart by junior members.

Carol Tea At Empress

The Victoria Musical Art Society will hold a Carol Tea in the Empress Hotel Ballroom on Saturday, Dec. 15, at 3 p.m. An interesting program has been arranged by the Christ Church Cathedral Boys' Choir, under the leadership of Richard Proudman. Tickets may be obtained from Miss Mary Adamson, 1316 Monterey Avenue.

Miss Veronica Milton, violinist, was introduced as guest soloist. She is a member of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and concertmistress of the Greater Victoria Schools Orchestra. Following a description of the parts of the violin and its place in the orchestra, Miss Milton, played two selections, accompanied by Miss Heather Grayshaw. An unaccompanied selection, entitled "Gypsy Airs," illustrated various techniques for the violin.

Miss Milton was thanked by Joan McCandlish, president. The meeting closed with "God Save the Queen," with Bruce Fryer at the piano. A social time was enjoyed by all at the conclusion of the meeting. The December Christmas party will be held Dec. 8.

Teacher Says

School System Unfair to Boys

VANCOUVER (CP) — L. H. Garstin, a secondary school principal in Kimberley, B.C., says British Columbia's elementary school system is unfair to boys. In fact, it's loaded in favor of girls.

In an article in the B.C. Teacher magazine of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, he says the curriculum does not take into account the fact that boys mature slower than girls.

To compound the theory, the preponderance of female elementary school teachers unconsciously favors girls.

Add to all that the "simplified" to boys situations in the first-grade reader.

"What boy can get up any enthusiasm for 'pretty, pretty puff' or 'funny cuckoo' as Jane wants a doll," Mr. Garstin asks.

"Yet read this same boy school in a direction more suited to the outlook of girls." Female teachers, he says, favor girls because they are neater, more conscientious, industrious and amenable.

What's the answer?

One might be to put boys and girls in separate classes and have men teach the boys.

Another is to eliminate the lock-step grade system where by a student is expected to consume a uniform dosage of

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cameron Back from Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Cameron are now living at 211 Cook Street after spending a honeymoon in Oregon and California.

The bride, Betty Dawn Levi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thut of Saseenos and Robert James Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex G. Cameron, 126 Cadillac Avenue, were married in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Baskets of fall flowers decorated the church and Rev. Norman Calland came from Abbotsford to officiate at the early November ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin brocade ballerina-length gown with three-quarter-length sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil misted from a lace headpiece topped with pearl de sole roses touched with pearls. She wore a pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Rosslyn Howard, wore a rust-toned crystal-charm taffeta ballerina-length dress with white accessories. Bridesmaid, Miss Patsy Smith, wore a contrasting pale green crystal-charm taffeta dress. Both wore matching floral headpieces and carried bouquets of yellow carnations.

The flower girl, Lorena Levi, niece of the bride, wore a gold-toned frock and carried a basket of yellow carnations tied with copper and green ribbon.

Donald Ramsfield was best man. Ushers were Rodney Kirkham and Bruce Calland.

A wedding cake, made by Mrs. E. Turnbull and decorated by Mrs. V. Kirkham, centred the bride's table at a reception in Hampton Hall. Late autumn flowers and pink and white streamers completed the decor. Walter Jessiman proposed the toast.

For travelling on honeymoon the bride wore a beige, three-piece-knit suit, turquoise hat and gloves and brown accessories. A white gardenia corsage completed her ensemble.

Out-of-town guests included Rev. N. Calland and Mrs. Calland of Abbotsford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baylis of Qualicum, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Calland, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson of Vancouver.

Shopping with Sally Suggestions For Gift List

By JILL ARLETT

Christmas shopping, although one of the year's most enjoyable pursuits, can be one big pain in the neck—unless your head is loaded with gift ideas before you begin shopping.

It'll be easier on both your feet—and your pocketbook—if you have a thought or two in mind about what so-and-so would like for Christmas, and where you can get it.

Here's a few suggestions:
For Children: Just the thing for kids on their way to school these wet days are pint-sized umbrellas complete with fancy handles, and steel shafts, right down to the spike on the end. Always a source of fun and fascination to any child, these 18" to 22" umbrellas are priced from $1.98 to $3.98. Incidentally the $3.98 ones are pagoda shaped and travellers can pack them easily.

STURDY GLOVES
Excellent for keeping their hands dry and warm—especially if your child rides a bicycle to school—are gloves made of durable—sturdy plastic fabric which looks just like leather. Flame-protected with a stretch panel for easy fingers and hand movement, gloves come in sizes for girls, misses, women, boys and men, and are priced from $1.19 to $1.49. For the golfer in the family these gloves ensure a firm grip on the club and don't impair the swing due to their flexibility.

PYJAMA BAGS
Toy poodles and foxes in the form of pyjama bags are selling at this store at $3.98, all ready to fill with a pair of pyjamas designed especially for the little boy or girl whose feet get cold in bed. Pj. bottoms have built-in socks, resembling a pair of tights. Price is only $2.98.

A good stocking filler (not too many Jap-oranges-please-mum) are 25 bubble baths in a plastic toy container for 75c.

ENGLISH IMPORT
For Men: For the man who travels a lot (or leaves his shaving brush, soap, comb, etc., strewn all over the bathroom) get him a genuine leather travelling case, imported from England. Case contains a large mirror, comb, nail file, clothes brush, hair brush, shaving brush and soap container all for $9.98.

And instead of watching him search frantically for matches, give him a Ronson windproof lighter, selling at one store from $1.98. Decorative Fisher table lighters are also featured at this store for $2.69 and carry a 10-year guarantee.

PERFUME
Boker imported pocket knives with sturdy handles are priced from $2.10 to $3.79 and all feature three blades. Even if its just to sharpen a pencil, peel an apple or even fix the car a pocket knife is always a useful item and is compact to carry.

For Women: Nothing is more appreciated by a woman than a bottle of good perfume. One store is selling Morry's English imported perfume from $2.69 to $6.89 and in the Guerlain line (including Shalimar) prices range from $6.69 up.

Particularly popular is the Chanel cologne, selling at only $3.98 for the 2-oz. bottle.

Perfect for coffee parties or late snacks is a set of cups and saucers, or mugs, of dark brown chinaware with a brightly painted Indian design. Known as Totemware, these attractive cups and mugs are just $1 each, while the matching teapot with cream and sugar set—designed rather like a totem pole—are $1.95 for the three.

Irish linen tea-towels featuring scenes of Victoria are an interesting gift for people no longer living in Victoria or for your own home as a table cover. Price is $1.50.

CRANBERRIES
Ready for turkey topping, the first crates of cranberries are due to arrive this weekend from Massachusetts, and are expected to retail at 35c a pound. Hawaiian pineapples—excellent table centres—are also expected and will vary in price from 29c to 79c according to size.

Due to the shortage of Japanese oranges this year, there

At the recent meeting of the Lake Hill Women's Institute, members unanimously elected Mrs. W. S. Buchanan as president. Mrs. E. Glover is the new secretary and Mrs. W. T. Malloy, treasurer, with Mrs. R. Myles and Mrs. F. Dickie, directors.

Reports were read on the past year's work and plans made for Christmas cheer. A cheque was sent to Mr. Sydney Pickles for the Handicapped Equipment Supply Association, with proceeds from the fall tea. Tea was served by retiring board members.

Problem: Find the Problem

Not Even Freedomites Know What They Want

By TERRY HAMMOND

All you've got to do to solve B.C.'s nagging and sometimes explosive Freedomite problem is find out exactly what they want and find a way to give it to them.

This theme and the many variations on it came a dime-a-dozen around the legislative buildings steps Tuesday and Wednesday as Victorians, many for the first time, got a look at members of a religious sect which has made headlines in B.C. for more than 60 years.

Scores of Victoria people, talked to the 45-member group of men, women and teen-agers huddled at the legislative buildings' front entrance. Their motives were varied, but most wanted somehow to help. A few even sought the key to a puzzle which for six decades has puzzled sociologists, educators, law-enforcement authorities and provincial governments of almost every political hue.

Some came away convinced that if they could just give the problem more of their time a solution would soon be forthcoming. They felt bewildered that all of the resources of government have failed to discover anything as simple as the exact nature of the Freedomites' problem and the means to eliminate it.

A dozen people came to me and said, "Why doesn't somebody solve their problem?"

"What is their problem?" I would ask.

"I don't know," the Good Samaritan would say. "Why doesn't someone ask them?"

Dozens asked. Hardly any two got the same answer.

I asked half a dozen Freedomites and I got half a dozen different answers:

"We want our spiritual leader Stefan Sorokin to come back to us." (He is in Uruguay for reasons best known to himself.)

"We want our Christian community back."

"We want our men out of jail."

"We are against the government."

And on, and on, and on.

Why doesn't somebody find out what their real problem is and solve it? To try to find the answer to this I sat down with two members of the RCMP's famous D (for Doukhobor) Squad. The squad consists of about 10 men who probably know more about the Freedomites and their problems than anybody else on earth, including the Freedomites themselves.

The squad has a multiple role. Its job is to enforce the law among the Doukhobors, to prevent Freedomite forays into the realms of high explosives and incendiaries, and finally to try to advise enough information about the sect to be able to advise the government in its search for a final answer.

These were no ordinary policemen. Their names cannot be disclosed, but it is safe to say they come from Canadian racial minorities.

They are well educated and they are dedicated to their mission. They differ from the average policeman largely by possessing two attributes — a sense of humor and warmly compassionate personalities. They are not soft, but neither are they brawling over with authority.

In spite of their years of study of the Freedomite problem they can offer no pat solution—but they haven't stopped looking for one.

"We don't regard it as hopeless," said the senior of the two. "If we did, we wouldn't be able to carry on effectively with our work."

"Why don't we solve the Secret of Freedom's problem?" I asked, echoing the question of the bystanders outside.

The policeman smiled and his eyes twinkled, "what is their problem?"

"They don't know what their problem is," he continued. "It's in their mind, but they don't know what it is."

"Solve our problem," they say to us."

"What is your problem?" we ask."

"We don't know, just solve our problem."

At other times, the D Squad men recalled, they will say their problem is the government. "We don't like the government, any government. We think people should think for themselves."

"But you take orders from your own leaders," the police reply.

"Yes, they are our leaders."

"Why don't you think for yourselves instead of letting your leaders think for you?"

"Because they are our leaders."

In these exchanges there is no clue to the direction from which help must come to the Freedomites, but they crystallize the very pitfall into which most rational would-be Good Samaritans fall—the assumption of reciprocal rationality.

The pitfall is all the more dangerous because at first glance a degree of rationality appears to exist. The Samaritan is lured on, and on. He thinks he is making headway where others have failed. Deeper and deeper he goes until suddenly he discovers that somewhere he has become derided.

He is a charitable fellow and he blames himself for having lost the thread of communication. Back he will go to the familiar ground at the beginning and this time he will not go off the tracks. But the familiar ground has shifted. It is no longer there and in its place is a new wilderness. There is no passageway where he found the entrance to the maze before.

Sometimes the illusion of success comes closer, but always it is an illusion.

The D Squad men can recall instances where the "what-do-you-want" approach has produced a straightforward request for something tangible and reasonable.

"We want such-and-such."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, that's what we want."

The men go through channels and the objective is approved and proffered.

"We have spoken with God," say the Freedomites, "and we don't want that now."

There is no pattern to the life of the Freedomite community say the police specialists, but such phases as burnings and explosions are irregularly cyclical.

The cycle of unrest and terrorism is sometimes traceable to the prosperity of the 1,500 member Freedomite sect.

Their religion militates against worldly wealth and after a period of quiet productivity the community will decide it has become too prosperous and destroy everything.

I asked the D Squad men if Stefan Sorokin's return would actually help. The Freedomites often say his return is what they want, but that he can't come back.

"We know of no reason why Sorokin can't come back," the police say. "There are no charges pending against him. He has said his life is in danger in B.C. but we've checked that and we don't believe it. We think he can come back if he wants to."

But they don't think his return would ease the problem.

"If Sorokin was a man who really wanted to help his people, it would be helpful to have him back, but we don't think he does."

When the 45 Freedomites in Victoria were asked if they would send an expense-paid delegation to Ottawa Tuesday, they said they could not go without Sorokin.

"How is it you can come to Victoria without Sorokin, but not to Ottawa?" I asked one of them.

"God is with us," came the reply.

"Wouldn't God be with your delegation in Ottawa?"

"We must have Sorokin."

And so it goes, from one mirage to another and yet another.

It leaves men of acute intelligence shaking their heads. It leaves governments powerless to stop disorder. It tries the patience of the social worker and plumbs the depths of the taxpayer's purse.

And it's really so simple.

All you've got to do is find out what their problem is and solve it.

Sally Ann Deluged by Protests

Outraged citizens kept the Salvation Army's two telephone lines buzzing all day Wednesday protesting what most called misuse of public funds to fund the help we gave the Freedomites at the Legislative Buildings, a spokesman said.

"It was a terrible outcry," the Salvation Army spokesman said.

"Only the last two calls were in favor of us being paid by the provincial government for the help we gave the Freedomites."

The Salvation Army was apparently told by government officials it would be reimbursed for the cost incurred in feeding the Doukhobors. The cost has not yet been estimated.

£ FOR £ YOU CAN'T BEAT ANGLIA!

£ for £ or $ for $ Anglia speaks a language all its own. In its British homeland, where more little cars are sold than anywhere else in the world, Anglia outsells every other car, regardless of size or make! Reasons? British craftsmanship is the main one. British engineers and designers developed Anglia to be the best car in its class. They did it so well Anglia is in a class by itself. Proof? Style for one thing. From gleaming front grille to raked-back roof, Anglia proves that a little car needn't be homely. Performance is another. In gruelling road rallies held around the world Anglia has developed a habit. It consistently scampers home with the winners (to the vast annoyance of bigger, more powerful cars, we might add!) And of course there's economy. If you had to pay the equivalent of 63¢ a gallon you'd soon pick a car that delivered top mileage per gallon. Britons have picked that car. Test drive Anglia and you'll find out why! See your Anglia dealer—he speaks Anglia language, but he speaks yours too.

Turn It Inside Out

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRIES

I got a great kick out of my neighbor Ernie the other afternoon. He came out of the house striding purposefully toward the oval flower bed in his lawn, a spade over his shoulder, and obviously bent on getting in an hour of hard digging before supper.

The bed had been filled with Coral Satin petunias all last summer, and had made a most colorful display. The petunias have long since been pulled up and consigned to the compost heap, and Ernie had spread a couple of barrow loads of manure over the bed ready for digging in.

He marched over to the bed, poised the spade ready for the first thrust, then stopped dead. He put the spade down, lit his pipe, scratched his head, picked up the spade, wandered around to the far edge of the bed, and went through the same performance, a perfect picture of confusion and indecision.

I strolled over, ostensibly to get a light for my cigarette, but really to find out what was bothering him. "What's the matter, Ernie?" I asked.

"Can't you bring yourself to soil your brand new spade?" "No, that's not it," he confessed, somewhat sheepishly. "I just can't figure out where to start on this ruddy bed!"

Ernie is a smart fellow. He had enough imagination and could think far enough ahead to realize that if he started his digging at the edge of the bed, he would horse things up to a fare-you-well before he had finished.

The trick with oval or circular beds is to start in the centre. Take out a hole in the middle, distributing the excavated soil thinly and evenly over the bed, then work around and around the hole, spiral fashion, "turning" the soil inward toward the centre of the bed as you go. With oval beds, you simply elongate your spiral. Wind up your spade work about six inches from the edge of the grass, and finish off with the half-moon edging iron, which will leave the edge clean and true.

With rectangular and square beds in lawns, take out a trench down the middle first, beginning and ending the trench a good six inches from the grass at either end, and again distributing the excavated soil over the remaining surface of the bed. The second line of digging is alongside the trench, turning the soil toward the middle and into the trench. This again preserves the clean-cut edges and saves a lot of labor when raking down; it also maintains the symmetry of the bed.

If the bed is not to be planted up until spring, don't rake it until just before planting time. By leaving the ground rough-dug and in clods through the winter, the sun, air and frost can get in their sweetening effect on the soil.

When the time comes to set out the bedding plants in such formal and geometric beds, it is best to start your planting around the outer edge and work inward toward the centre. I admit this takes a bit of doing, and is rather like the man who painted himself into the corner of the room when painting the floor, but it is next to impossible to get the plants to come out right, neatly and evenly spaced, if you start elsewhere than around the outer edge.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

She's in Love, He's in Luck

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Jayne Mansfield has been very lucky for producer Enrico Bomba, although it remains to be seen if Bomba has been lucky for Jayne. Anyhow, the Italian of Miss Mansfield's girlish dreams is all of a sudden making lots and lots of pictures, starting with Storm Over Ceylon with Lex Barker and an international cast which does not include Jayne.

There really was a storm at the airport in Rome, when Barker failed to show for the Air India plane that was to take them all to Ceylon. Lex finally appeared with a stewardess employed by a different airline with whom he has been seen on sundry more private occasions.

George Sanders, Jacques Sernas and Rossana Podesta will star for Bomba in El Kazar, to be filmed in Beirut. ... And just in case you are getting ready to ask, "So where's Jayne?" Enrico plans to star her in film number three, Italian Lover. Meanwhile the lovers are planning a cosy Christmas in Ceylon or Beirut or wherever the Bomba is exploding.

It's Only Money is on the way to becoming the biggest money success of Jerry Lewis' career. Jerry never has had a loser.

I would bet that Walter Wanger will sell his interest in Cleopatra before the movie is released in June. Even if the film is the smash hit everyone in the industry hopes it will be—it will take years and years and years to recoup the $60,000,000 the picture must earn before it makes a profit.

Of course this does not affect Elizabeth Taylor. She gets 10 per cent of the gross. I agree with producer Joe Pasternak who stated recently that it is a crime to give anyone anything except a percentage of the net profits.

Victor Mature and Jim Backus went to the same military academy. According to Jim they were full of jokes and zany tricks. And their instructors predicted that neither would be successful in later life. Moral to school-masters: Always be nice to your pupils. You never know which will be successful.

And here they are—Enrico Bomba and Jayne Mansfield—who are said to be planning an April in Paris wedding. Of course, there's the little matter of Jayne getting a divorce from Mickey Hargitay, and of Bomba getting a divorce, too. But these things have a way of adjusting themselves in the tinsel world.

Suzi Parker, who is so beautiful it just isn't fair, surprised producer Harold Hecht when she arrived for her role in Flight from Ashiya, with a new, very short Italian haircut. "You look perfect for the part of an Italian boy," said Harold, "but you're supposed to be a very feminine American secretary." Two days and one or two wigs later, Suzi was.

Beggars Give Their All

By PETER WORTHINGTON

NEW DELHI (TNS)—A remarkable procession of beggars, school children and big-wigs strolled through splendid grounds to the rear garden of Prime Minister Nehru's home.

After they had stood around for maybe 15 minutes in three whispering groups, Nehru quietly appeared.

With a fresh rose in a but, tonhole of his knee-length tan coat and with a morning glow of health on his cheeks, Nehru stood shyly on the steps acknowledging the group with his hands clasped as if in prayer.

Then a trio of rag-clad wandering minstrels, two of them without teeth, suddenly burst into dreadful song.

Nehru looked slightly appalled.

But he stiffly complimented their talent and thanked them for their gift of 101 rupees to the national defence fund—$21.72.

It took the minstrels three weeks to collect the amount. While greeting everyone, Nehru collected two dozen roses, several daisies, a garland of flowers, four petitions and a hand-made purse.

Gifts of gold bangles, rings, coins and cash and jewels he asked to be turned in at a special tent bank set up on his front lawn.

Every morning commencing at 8:30 this extraordinary activity is re-enacted.

It's a most graphic illustration of India's new-found unity and single-minded desire to thwart Chinese ambitions toward her.

For half an hour or so Nehru accepts gifts for the nation and has a word with any who wish to see him.

The procession I took part in had 17 beggars, 22 school children, 31 "respectable" citizens, a group of Red Cross representatives and a U.S. colonel—who wanted his photo taken shaking hands with Nehru.

Only in India would democracy be reflected in this leader-beggar comradeship. It's impossible not to be touched by the sincerity of both the donors and Nehru.

It's obvious that it pains and embarrasses Nehru to have women thrust treasured gold bangles and other jewels into his hands.

At the tent in front, I watched one bundle of rags walk in and donate the equivalent of 35 cents to the fund.

An old woman in red shawl gave a two-rupee note, and another with palsy gave a long-treasured English gold sovereign.

Three disreputable, rough-looking chaps wandered into the tent and you wondered whether perhaps they were there to rob.

But each of them fished out an enormous wad of bills, one a good five inches thick, and tossed them nonchalantly into the steel box.

Another bank official weighed bank bangles and jewels and calculated their worth on a receipt which the donors later showed to Nehru.

Children, under eyes of proud parents, made token donations.

In the garden it was these children that Nehru seemed most at ease with. He chatted with them and walked along holding hands with little tykes who giggled with delight—as did their mothers.

Indira Gandhi, Nehru's daughter, kept a careful eye on her father and helped him out when petitions or documents were thrust at him.

Mrs. Gandhi wears no jewelry; she has none to wear. She was first to donate all she owned to the defence fund.

After greeting everyone and modestly accepting their homage (and shaking hands with the colonel) Nehru said goodbye. He had to get ready for the day's session of Parliament.

As he went inside the crowd refused to budge until they were shooed away by guards. And to someone looking on it was "clearer than ever" that Nehru is not a nation's leader so much as he is a people's idol.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda yesterday attacked some Soviet scientists for "living at science's expense" and producing nothing useful.

The paper cited the case of Kazakhstan scientist S. I. Sokolov, studying the soils of the Ural River valley for 17 years.

It said "the end of his work is not in sight and there are also no concrete recommendations."

A check of Kazakhstan scientific institutes showed that 1,066,000 rubles (about $1,172,600) had been spent investigating 65 subjects later dropped because there did not appear to be enough evidence to warrant any continuation.

Pravda crowned its list of "useless" scientists by telling the story of M. N. Kabarov, "who pretended to be working hard on three projects, but in fact was writing plays for a local theatre, while not forgetting to collect his salary at the institute on the button."

In 12 years the institute paid the "dramatist" 57,000 rubles (about $62,700) "just for being on the staff."

Bookmobiles Best For Local Schools

Bookmobiles are the answer for Greater Victoria schools in spite of an expert's advice streaming individual libraries for all schools, the chairman of Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council library committee maintained recently.

"Bookmobiles would be less expensive per capita—50 cents per taxpayer per bookmobile—and they would reach more people in more areas more easily," said Miss Gladys Ledingham, a retired school teacher, in an interview.

CAN'T AFFORD IT
"I'd much rather go into a nice library than climb into a truck, but we just can't afford it," she said, commenting on Dr. Rose Valenstein's recently published report of the library situation in Greater Victoria.

The experience of North York, a suburb of Toronto, strengthens the case for bookmobiles.

One main library and four bookmobiles served 225,000 people at a per capita cost of $2.13, only 43 cents more than Victoria's per capita cost. North York's population is 85 per cent greater. The bookmobiles handled 700,000 books in a year.

MOST EXPENSIVE
Now, due to pressure, three branch libraries have replaced the bookmobiles and North York's library is the most expensive in Canada. "These multiple branch openings certainly are not to be desired," one of the North York librarians writes.

"At the present time we have one bookmobile serving Saanich and Central Saanich," said Miss Ledingham. "But we want all schools in the area serviced by bookmobiles, and that means two more."

She stressed the library committee is interested only in leisure reading and "the school is not there for that." The chief librarian at Victoria Public Library wants one library per school, Miss Ledingham said, "but each elementary school doesn't need a library at all."

"A school library should be just for reference in classrooms," she said.

All municipalities must be of one mind in this library question otherwise it won't work, she said, adding she doesn't as yet know who will make the final decision on libraries or bookmobiles.

"There are 40,000 taxpayers in Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich," she said. "Cost of one bookmobile would be $15,000 and maintenance about $15,000 a year."

50 CENTS PER TAXPAYER
"If the bookmobile were paid for over a period of three years, only $20,000 a year would be required—that means 50 cents per taxpayer, or $1 when two bookmobiles are purchased."

The committee studied the problem of a drop-off in library circulation since November, 1961, and in March, 1962, presented a brief to the Victoria Public Library Board advocating better service to all areas through bookmobiles.

African Strikers Arrested

THUNDER, Northwest Africa (Reuters) — Several hundred Negroes have gone on strike at a smelting plant here and 42 of them have been jailed. Another 150 have been detained in their compound.

Earlier this week Negro laborers complained the heat at the plant was too great, and that they could not bear the fumes.

A magistrate inspected the plant Wednesday and found the complaints "without foundation."

French Papers Band Together

MONTREAL (CP) — Publishers of 52 French-language periodicals have banded together to fight competition from or absorption by English-language periodicals.

The group calls itself l'Association Canadienne-Française de Periodiques Incorporee.

Freedomites Back in Hope

HOPE, B.C. (CP) — Life returned to the Sons of Freedom version of normal Thursday after a delegation returned from Victoria with promises of British Columbia government help.

Forty-one of 49 Freedomites who left here Tuesday returned to a campsite of 1,200 sect members near this village 100 miles east of Vancouver.

The group arrived quietly and spent about an hour in the assembly hall of the Seventh Day Adventist camp telling their friends what happened.

Paul Scherle, chairman of the village commission, who had led the delegation and who had earlier criticized Premier Bennett for the briefcase of his interview with himself and two members of the group, commented:

"I would sooner go back and fight in Italy than go back there (Victoria) to fight."

He said the government has taken the responsibility of the Freedomites off the village in the event of any crisis.

Publicity Bureau Revenue $119,449 for 10 Months

The Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau took in $119,449.82 in the 10 months ended Nov. 30 and spent $100,670.61 in the same period.

Figures distributed at yesterday's directors' meeting show the bureau had $7,342.40 in cash and in the bank Jan. 31 and $26,121.61 Nov. 30.

FOR PROMOTION
Of receipts, $68,539.21 were considered to be for promotion of tourism within Victoria and $50,911.61 for external publicity. Of expenses $64,806.79 were considered internal and $36,063.82 external.

The bureau received $29,257.77 in grants from the provincial government and $36,250 from Victoria city. It spent $28,115.20 on salaries, $21,503.87 on printing costs, $10,989.46 for external advertising and $18,562.85 for literature.

COST DIVIDED
Bureau commissioner William Hawkins reported to directors that the total cost of the Vancouver Island information booth at the Seattle World Fair was about $36,000. The cost was borne about 50-50 by the bureau and the provincial government.

The bureau received 3,254 inquiries in October and 3,950 in November.

TRAFFIC DOWN
Ferries between the U.S. and Vancouver Island brought 630 cars and 1,728 persons to the island in December. This represents a decrease of 84 cars and 126 persons from November, 1961.

Wage Thaw Near

A favorable announcement by the cabinet on the federal government's civil service wage freeze is imminent, a civil service spokesman says.

G. K. Sammon, national president of the Department of Veterans' Affairs National Association, said he expected word on the freeze "any day."

BACK FROM OTTAWA

Mr. Sammon has just returned from wage talks in Ottawa and says he believes the government will honor retroactive wage rates recommended by its own wage research bureau and the civil service commission.

Recommended date for retroactive pay in the administration group of civil servants is Oct. 1, 1961.

Mr. Sammon said he had no idea of the amount the government would have to pay out. He said about 50,000 civil servants were in the pay category. In Victoria more than 2,000 government employees will be affected.

"When you are close to the scene, you realize what a difficult decision it is for the government at this time," Mr. Sammon said.

U.S. Jaycees Planning Yule Cruise

Spreading friendship and the spirit of Christmas, the Bellingham Junior Chamber of Commerce will tour American and Canadian waters aboard a Christmas ship Dec. 22 and 23.

During the trip the Jaycees will visit more than 1,200 children on the San Juan and Gulf Islands distributing small gifts.

The Christmas ship is the 73-foot Pacific American Fisheries cannery tender Karlok and is skippered by Isaac Gould.

Plans are for stops at Blakely, Lopez, Shaw, Orcas and San Juan Islands on Dec. 22 with further stops at Salt Spring, Mayne, Galiano, North Pender and Saturna Islands Dec. 23.

The tour is put on each year by the Jaycees with financial help from the retail trades division of Bellingham's Chamber of Commerce.

Youth Cleared Stories Conflict In Trial

Magistrate William Oatley yesterday dismissed a charge of impaired driving against a 19-year-old Sidney youth after hearing three police witnesses testify he was impaired and another three testify he wasn't.

In dismissing the case against Donald Ivan McKay, 9601 Sixth Street, without hearing any defence evidence, Magistrate Oatley rejected police Dr. E. L. McNeven's evidence of a sobriety test.

EVIDENCE CONTRADICTED

"The most significant thing about Dr. McNeven's evidence is that it was contradicted by everybody," he said.

"... There is complete contradiction of the doctor's evidence. ... I cannot accept the doctor's evidence in view of all the contradictions."

At the same time, Magistrate Oatley praised the police officers for giving evidence of their differing opinions about whether or not McKay was impaired.

HEALTHY SIGN

"This is a very healthy sign and it was quite proper for the Crown to bring it (the conflicting evidence) forward," he said.

Conflicting testimony came from Consts. Ivan Purdy and Laurie "Belly" who arrested McKay and contended he was impaired, and Sgt. John Perry and Consts. Gordon Bennett and Benjamin Acreman.

McKay was arrested at Burnside and Washington and both Const. Purdy and Const. Belly said the youth stumbled when he got out of the car and his breath smelled of alcohol.

DIFFERENT DESCRIPTIONS

Const. Purdy described McKay as having a pale complexion. Const. Belly said he had a flushed complexion and a pale neck.

Sgt. Perry, on duty in the city charge office when McKay was brought in, told the court he felt the youth was "a borderline case." Cross-examined by Edwin Popham, for McKay, Sgt. Perry agreed he was unable to decide whether or not the youth was impaired.

APPEARED NORMAL

Const. Bennett testified McKay appeared normal in his opinion and he was not impaired.

Const. Acreman said he put McKay in a cell after he was tested for sobriety by Dr. McNeven.

"I saw the accused come into the charge office unassisted. I smelled the odor of alcohol on his breath, but other than that the accused acted quite normal."

"Due to his quiet and placid condition, rather than put him in the drunk tank that was getting pretty full, I gave him a bed."

In summing up, Magistrate Oatley said:

"... Const. Acreman had far more opportunity to observe this defendant than the arresting officers," he said.

More Park Space?

Planners Eye Prime Land

NANAIMO—Advisory planning commission members are debating the best means of developing the old Madill property near the arena.

There is strong opposition to the idea of using it as a city yard—even temporarily—and there appears to be some public backing for the suggestion that it be developed as a marina park.

Mrs. Marjorie Neave, one of the commissioners, emphasized the value of the park as a tourist attraction, if the city follows the recommendations of the recent study committee.

"The town has got to make up its mind once and for all: are we going in for tourists or industry."

DUNCAN—Provincial agriculture minister Frank Richter will speak to the Cowichan 4-H Holstein Club annual banquet at the Eagle's Hall tomorrow night. Trophies, cups and prize money will be awarded.

Lots will be offered at a modest price to encourage newcomers to build in the area. Survey work will begin soon.

Around The Island

Hotel will be S. B. Peterson, provincial 4-H clubs' supervisor. New officers will be elected.

ALBERNI—Over $200 was raised by the staff of Alberni Indian Residential School, who put on a tea and sale to raise Christmas funds for students who will remain at the school over the holiday.

Principal John Andrews, and members of the staff welcomed guests at the event in the school auditorium. The choir and band entertained with musical selections and more than a dozen boys of the school put on a tumbling display.

PORT ALBERNI—Head of a well-known family of this city, Mr. Tim Shun died in West Coast General Hospital at the age of 71.

Born in Canton, China, he had worked in a local sawmill for 27 years, retiring in 1957.

He is survived by his wife, Loretta, at the family home, 414 Sixth Avenue South; four sons, John in Ottawa, Jim in Moose Jaw, Jack in Calgary, Jerry at UBC; three daughters, Mrs. Rose Won and Mrs. Lillie Sam, Victoria, and Mrs. Helen Lee, Port Alberni.

Rites will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. in Stevens funeral home, Rev. Roy Rodgers officiating. Interment will be in Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens.

DUNCAN—The Natural History Society will meet at St. John's Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m. Slides will be shown.

Incumbent Tops Poll In Parksville

PARKSVILLE—Edward Irving was returned for a two-year term on the village commission in a light—but close—vote yesterday.

Also elected was G. E. Mayfield.

Mr. Irving polled 222 votes, Mr. Mayfield received 183 and Walter Avery, the unsuccessful candidate, polled 137.

Only 278 eligible voters marked the multiple-choice ballots out of a possible 778 names on the voters' list.

It was pointed out, however, that as many as 30 per cent of those eligible are absentee landowners.

Incumbent school trustee C. H. Lettler was returned to his office by acclamation.

Port Alberni Blaze

Smoke poured from roof of Compton's Jewellers building in downtown Port Alberni Wednesday as firemen fought $20,000 blaze. Flames shot 50 feet into the air at one point and several people fled smoky suites in adjacent building. Faulty wiring was blamed.—M. Trebett)

Sportsmen Name 'Member of Year'

PARKSVILLE—Marcel Beusellink was chosen "Member of the Year" by Parksville Fish and Game Association and received the Alex Young Memorial Perpetual Trophy at the annual club dinner at the Island Hall Hotel.

The presentation was made by Ted Barsby of Nanaimo, director of the Federation of B.C. Fish and Game Clubs.

Robert Thompson was awarded the Fish and Game Club Trophy for the biggest deer shot by a club member and received the award from president Sam Gough.

DEER DERBY—Mr. Gough also presented prizes for a deer derby held by the club for the first time this year.

First prize of $75 went to Albert Scott of Nanaimo Bay for a 172-pound deer, second prize of $50 to Chuck Addison, Nanaimo, and third prize of $25 to Jim Gilmour.

The Rushton Memorial Perpetual Trophy for the biggest salmon caught by a club member was uncontested this year as members were too busy during the annual derby to fish. Mr. Gough reported that plans are under way to hold a special derby for club members next season.

GUEST SPEAKER

Guest speaker was Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River.

The need for continued pressure to keep Strathcona Park as a recreation area was stressed by Mr. Haig-Brown, who said "it behooves all of us to make an endeavor to prevent commercial enterprises such as mining and logging from devastating the beauty of the area." In his opinion, he said, logging should be stopped in the park and other enterprises closely controlled.

PROPOSAL FAVORED

Speaking of stream fishing, he said he is in favor of some streams and creeks being restricted to fly fishing—or at least unweighted lure fishing—in the interest of preserving fishing for the future.

He pointed out the need to teach young anglers the value of good sportsmanship.

Two-Time Also-Ran Tops Courtenay Poll

COURTENAY—An alderman who twice before had reached second place in the popular vote yesterday climbed to the top, topping his "rival" from his previously-held pedestal.

He is Ald. A. H. Strachan, who won 506 votes as against Ald. S. S. Williams who trailed him with 480 votes. Third man in office is Ald. George Hobson with 416 votes.

Defeated in their bid were William Finlayson, a brother of former Progressive Conservative provincial leader Dean Finlayson, with 350 votes and Robert Lay with 167.

Robert Lay is reported to have made inquiries as to the validity of the three winners because they advertised in the Wednesday edition of the local weekly paper. However, late last night Mrs. Lay said her husband will not contest the election.

Fire Area Growth Wins Approval

NORTH COWICHAN—A scant two per cent of the eligible voters trickled to the polls here yesterday to cast ballots in a referendum to approve expansion of the South End Fire Protection district.

The measure was approved by a vote of 29 to 11.

A seven-per cent vote approved extension of the Crofton Fire Prevention district. A total of 44 votes were cast—all but seven of them in favor.

Two members of the North Cowichan school board were returned by acclamation. They were Joseph Frumente and J. M. Eloff.

No election was held in Lake Cowichan. Matthew Nelson Lafarge, incumbent, and Archibald Greenwell were both elected by acclamation.

Sitka, McDiarmid Win Close Fight in Tofino

TOFINO—Close votes characterized village commission elections in both Tofino and Ucluelet yesterday.

In Tofino, William Sitka topped the polls with 49. Incumbent Howard McDiarmid was re-elected with 47, and Thomas Pleasants lost with 22. Harry Taylor, with 76 votes and Thomas Tugwell with 70, were elected in Ucluelet. Unsuccessful were George Ashcroft (23) and James Parlin (13).

Mason Scores
Duncan UpsetHeavy Ladysmith Vote
Exhausts Ballot Supply

LADYSMITH—Heaviest turnout of voters on the island—about 75 per cent—yesterday apparently put Len Ryan into the chairman's seat. He was leading with 672 over opponent Arnold Hill who had 534 votes.

By press time not all ballots had yet been counted.

The polling stations ran out of ballots and had extra copies printed in a rush as 1,239 voters out of 1,643 descended on the polls.

Voters Return
Veteran Trio

NANAIMO—The three incumbent aldermen—one in his fifth, another in his third term of office—yesterday made it safely back into council seats with healthy margins over their one opponent.

Voting was light with 2,162 ballots cast—31 per cent of 6,290 eligible voters. Last year's voting stood at 39 per cent. Eight ballots were spoiled.

CLOSE COUNT

Ald. Douglas Greer took 1,555 votes for his third term, closely followed by Ald. Jack Parker with 1,539 and Ald. George Bryce with 1,447 votes, his sixth term.

Mrs. Mega MacDougall was supported by 1,019 votes but was out of the running.

One incumbent, Trustee Harold Godfrey with 1,258 votes, and newcomer Jack Whitlam with 1,070 votes were elected to the school board, leaving candidates Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers—923 votes—and Ray Foster with 507 votes comfortably behind.

In the school board vote, 127 spoiled ballots were counted.

Alberni
Count
Tiny Vote

ALBERNI—Voters trickled to the polls here and in Port Alberni yesterday to participate in one of the lightest city council elections in many years.

In Alberni, incumbent Thomas Hamilton topped the polls with 521 votes. Others elected were incumbent Charles R. James with 506 and William Anderson with 365.

Unsuccessful in the contest were J. G. W. Jones, 133; Joseph P. Lynn, 290; Kenneth Mackenzie, 351; Alma Warhag, 117.

Ralph Gillman won the single school board vacancy with 432 votes. Bruce Knowles was defeated with 400.

Only 852 out of a possible 1,885 cast ballots.

In Port Alberni, two of the three successful candidates to council were incumbents.

The winners: J. R. Dalton, 1,174; George Folkard, 1,172; William Goddard, 1,063.

Donald McIntosh with 499 and George McKnight with 453 both went down to defeat.

Some 1,600 out of 4,549 eligible voters turned out.

Comox Backs
Incumbents

COMOX—Two incumbent commissioners slid back into office easily in yesterday's municipal election, leaving the third candidate far behind in the race.

Commissioner Richard Graham won with a comfortable majority of 165 votes, and commissioner Mrs. M. Cliffe was re-elected with 148 votes.

Victim of the election was Marcel Godin who got 91 votes.

Meetings Halted

St. John Ambulance divisional meetings will be discontinued, starting Dec. 10, until after the New Year.

Tight Race

CAMPBELL RIVER—Newcomers Arthur Clinton and Peter Lauren yesterday emerged victorious from a tight four-way contest for two seats on the village commission.

Mr. Clinton topped the polls with 280 votes. Mr. Lauren came a close second with 265.

Unsuccessful candidates were James Moffett and Ken Blaney polled 254 and 241 respectively.

Elected school trustees were Robert Langdon, 539; Ruth Saunders, 581; incumbent Frank Standeven, 594. Frank Dink was unsuccessful with 221.

Only 35 per cent of the 1,770 eligible voters cast ballots.

DUNCAN—A retired CPR locomotive fireman, who staged an unsuccessful campaign for a seat on city council last year, scored an upset yesterday by topping the polls in the municipal election.

Robert J. Mason, with 259 votes, was elected to a two-year term. Incumbent James H. Saunders won the second open seat with 250 votes.

SMALL TURNOUT

Incumbent Robert K. Cairns, who polled 211 votes, was defeated.

Only 628 out of a possible 1,643 eligible voters cast their ballots—a vote of about 39 per cent.

Civic officials last night said the balloting had been almost twice as heavy a year ago.

'CLEAN FIGHT'

Successful candidate Mason, in a brief interview after the count, expressed delight at the results. "I'm very happy about the whole thing. It was a clean fight all the way."

Mr. Saunders, a contractor in the city, has served four terms on council.

A. G. Clelland, Warden Win At Alert Bay

ALERT BAY—A. G. Clelland, with 54 votes, and G. A. Warden with 49, won a closely-contested election for two seats on the village commission yesterday.

Incumbent G. A. Peterson went down to defeat with 37 votes. Other successful candidate was Arthur Granger with 33 votes.

Youth Needed
For Red Cross,
To Save World

DUNCAN—"If we could get all young people to work actively in the Junior Red Cross, we would have a better world to live in," said Ralph Wendeborn, Toronto, national director of the Canadian Junior Red Cross yesterday in Duncan.

Mr. Wendeborn was accompanied by the provincial Junior Red Cross director Mrs. B.C. Mrs. Ila Service from Vancouver.

MEET OFFICIALLY

Both officials conferred with the vice-president for the Cowichan branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society and councillor of North Cowichan, Mrs. Elaine Dobbin. Mr. Wendeborn was appointed to his post four months ago.

LIMITED CONNECTION

Mr. Wendeborn said there is a limited connection with Russia and all Iron Curtain countries. In strengthening the links of Junior Red Cross all over the world, an exchange program is carried out and young people win insight into the way of life of other nations. This January Mr. Wendeborn is going to Geneva to help prepare a one-week world educators' conference in Switzerland set for next August. Leading educators from almost every country will come, to discuss world-wide Junior Red Cross.

Pedestrian's Life
Only One He Has

Pedestrians don't lead charmed lives, Saanich police chief W. A. Pearson warned bluntly last night.

"A pedestrian has only one life to give," he said. "Why give it foolishly?"

Chief Pearson made his statement in support of Safe Driving Week which ends at midnight tonight, and pointed to the number of accidents involving pedestrians.

There is an appalling attitude among pedestrians, he said.

"They seem to believe that crosswalks have invisible barriers to halt cars."

"Car drivers are just as bad once they leave their cars and proceed on foot."

"Some pedestrians are taking too much advantage of the motorist."

"Cars are becoming more numerous on the roads and yet some pedestrians are insisting more and more on what they think are their rights."

Court Told of Choking,
'Million-Dollar Theft'

By DON MATHESSON

Tales of a mental patient choked unconscious by an attendant, plans for a $1,000,000 Victoria robbery, and the search for a "zip gun" unfolded in Saanich police court yesterday.

Details were disclosed in testimony at the preliminary hearing of an attempted murder charge against Peter Howard Dootson, a psychiatric nurse's aide at Colquhoun Mental Home.

Psychiatric nurse William H. Higgs testified that Dootson's treatment of patients had been "on the sadistic side" after he had been injured in an automobile accident more than a year ago.

Mr. Higgs was asked by prosecutor Kenneth Murphy

how the treatment had been "sadistic."

"By pushing a patient around unnecessarily ... like putting a towel around a patient's neck and choking him until he was unconscious," Mr. Higgs testified.

The patient was "a Doukhobor—just a young fellow," Mr. Higgs added.

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Alan Bigelow, Mr. Higgs said he had watched the incident from 50 feet away.

Other hospital workers had been present, Mr. Higgs said.

"The way I get it, nobody did anything about this poor Doukhobor (patient being choked)?" Mr. Bigelow asked.

"No," Mr. Higgs testified. Dootson is charged with attempting to murder 64-year-old Robert Robinson Oct. 19 by hitting him with a blunt instrument and then setting fire to him in the staff quarters at the mental home.

A former psychiatric aide, Louis Van Heck, described robbery plans he said Dootson entertained, and the "zip-gun" incidents.

He said he'd told the accused to hit behind an ear.

Then Dootson had showed him an iron bar that he kept "under the head of the bed," and Mr. Van Heck told him, "My God, if you ever hit a man on the head with that you'd kill him," he testified.

Robbery... $1,000,000

He was quite friendly with Dootson, he said, and the accused had "discussed quite a bit (about) robberies ... he was quite interested in committing some robberies."

"A robbery (discussed) involved the Black Ball Ferry and the Empress Hotel and was a million dollars," he testified.

Mr. Van Heck said that in the ($1,000,000) robbery Dootson said he "would have to kill someone—an old man who carried the money in a satchel—but he didn't mind that."

Later, Dootson had shown him a "lever-action rifle" but "I told him it was too nice a rifle to cut down."

Earlier testimony at the hearing was that Dootson purchased a rifle from another staff member, then sold it later.

Under cross-examination from Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Van Heck admitted that he had been "prepared" to make a cut-down rifle for Dootson.

He also said that he "realized (Dootson's) intention of injuring or hitting someone" but had not told anyone in authority.

"Everyone was scared of him ... I was scared of him ... I didn't exactly feel at ease with him," Mr. Van Heck said. He said he started "staying away" from Dootson when "I realized he meant to do business with this bar (iron bar)."

A few days before the early morning when the victim was injured, Mr. Van Heck said, Dootson had told him that he "needed money and needed it bad and didn't care how he got it," and that he had planned to break into a service station.

The night of the incident, he had been in bed when he heard screams.

He became "kinda scared" and shut the door (to his room), he said.

He lay down for 10 minutes, then heard water running in a washroom.

He testified he then got up and opened the door and "saw Dootson standing in the hallway in the vicinity of the washrooms. The accused had no shirt on, and was wearing tan pants."

Other staff members gathered and Mr. Robinson was found in his smoke-filled room.

Under intensive cross-examination by Mr. Bigelow, psychiatric aide Kenneth Dickinson admitted that Colquhoun was a hospital for the "criminally insane."

Later, however, Mr. Taylor said, "he was taking an interest in my wife ... I talked that over with him ... (they would remain friends, but) ... as far as coming over to my home we'd leave that out."

Mr. Taylor testified that Dootson had a brain operation after his September accident and that his doctor told him "he shouldn't drink for at least a year."

But Dootson had been drinking "straight rum" at a New Year's party.

Asked if, in his opinion, liquor was bad for Dootson, Mr. Taylor replied "I'd say definitely."

Earlier testimony was that Dootson discussed the "best way" of killing Mr. Taylor because he was "infatuated" with his wife.

The hearing will continue Wednesday, Dec. 12.

Investment in Cup, Saucer
Beats 15-Cent Coffee PriceSTAFF NOTEBOOK
By Ted Shackelford

SECOND CUP: We can't vouch for this but we hear a city businesswoman who uses the government ferries for frequent trips to the mainland has figured out how to beat the high price of coffee.

Since the ferries began charging 15 cents a cup with refills free of charge, it appears she has been carrying her own cup and saucer—snatching the ferry crockery—in her bag. And she slips it out when she wants a coffee and asks for the free refill.

SPECTATOR: A headliner with the Ice Capades show for 21 years, Peppy Spedid holds what may be a record of some kind—he only won the show once. That was the night before he entered the army in 1944. Apart from sneaking on that occasion Bobby has at least made an appearance in every show in those 21 years despite such minor disabilities as a broken leg and pleurisy pneumonia.

BONANZA: There's an anonymous donation of $17.50 in this morning's list of latest gifts to the Colonist 500 Fund and there's a little story behind it. An elderly gentleman came into the office yesterday with a bag of assorted coins he had collected in travels all over the world and wanted to donate them to the fund. According to George Curran who collected a few coins as a hobby looked them over, made a generous estimate and offered $17.50 for the lot. Among the coins were shipplanners, large Canadian coins, tiny silver Canadian nickel, three New Zealand coins, British farthings, a King George III penny, Irish coins, and others from South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, China, Russia, United States, Mexico and two tokens.

DID YOU KNOW? It costs $2.25 for the first eight ounces and 25 cents for each additional four ounces to send a parcel by air from Canada to Uganda. We didn't know either until the federal postal department sent us a press release this week.

NEW CRAZE: From casual inquiries around a few Victoria stores it looks as if the latest jewelry craze in the States is starting to make itself felt here. The glitzy look is to hunt clear-glass marbles in a trying pun or an oven for

Downtown

A Vancouver woman yesterday lost a roll of bills totaling $335 in downtown Victoria.

Mrs. Lorraine Harbottle, who came to Victoria with her young son only a few days ago to look for work, had just drawn the money out of the bank after having it transferred from Vancouver, when she lost it.

She noticed it missing shortly after coming out of a restaurant near Douglas and Yates Streets.

Anyone finding the money can return it to Mrs. Harbottle at 700 Queens, Suite 6. She has offered a reward.

Winter School

Course Set
To Train
Union Men

PARKSVILLE—A one-week "Winter School" will be held in Parksville Feb. 3 to 8 to instruct and train officers and stewards of local unions to discharge their union responsibilities more effectively.

Sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress department of education, the school is being organized and arranged by the B.C. Federation of Labor and the C.F. Pacific regional office.

VARIED PROGRAM

A tentative program of subjects includes: international affairs, collective bargaining, advanced steward training, improved union administration and labor's citizenship month.

WEEK-LONG COURSE

Courses run a full week, and students must spend at least four days on their subject. Plans are to provide students an opportunity to make a complete and advanced study of one particular subject.

E. P. O'Neil, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor and Joe Morris, executive vice-president of the CLC are expected to be included in the list of instructors, speakers and panel members.

Cyclist Bruce Millane, 14, of 1621 Jubilee, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries suffered when his bicycle collided with a car on Quadra Wednesday.

about half an hour at 400 degrees or more and then drop them straight into ice water. The marbles shatter internally but don't break apart and the cracks reflect and refract light inside the marble. This is stuck to a jewelry mount obtainable at hobby stores and put on a thin chain to make a pendant.

By all reports Jackie Kennedy wears one, so there must be something to it. The only trick so far as we can find out is locating clear glass marbles. Seems the only ones on sale in Victoria are colored and they don't look so attractive when they are treated.

NO THANKS: Somehow we doubt that many local newspapermen will be entering the annual travel writing contest being run by Press Journal, a trade publication. First prize is a trip for two—all expenses paid—to beautiful B.C. 8000, the $250 cash award might make it worthwhile.

SAANICH VETOES MERGER PROJECT

Reaction Varies Outside Saanich

By IAN STREET

Reaction in other parts of Greater Victoria to the defeat of yesterday's amalgamation referendum in Saanich ranged from indifference to bitter disappointment.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and other members of city council who strongly supported further investigation of all aspects of amalgamation were disappointed but not surprised by the outcome.

DOUBT LEFT
John Wallace, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said the vote against amalgamation left doubt in some minds whether the people of Saanich really wanted progress.

He predicted that "all the things Saanich fears" including soaring taxes and deteriorating services will come true in the next decade.

The reeves of Oak Bay and Esquimalt made it clear that their opposition to amalgamation had not been affected by yesterday's vote. Both said it did not concern their municipalities.

"BACK TO BUSINESS"
"Now we can go back to carrying on business of the city," said Mayor Wilson, after learning the result of the Saanich vote.

He added: "When the time comes, as it most certainly will some day, for Saanich to want an investigation of amalgamation, in the interests of the larger community I hope the city will still be willing to talk terms."

R. J. Bower, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee on amalgamation, said he is still of the opinion that "it's imperative we have a full investigation of the feasibility of amalgamation."

NO DECISION
Until all the facts and figures brought to light by such a detailed study are placed before the public, said Mr. Bower, it is not possible to make a final decision.

A meeting of the chamber's committee will be called within a few days to decide on its future plans, the chairman said.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, one of three aldermen seeking re-election next Thursday, said:

By JACK FRY

Reeve Stanley Murphy last night bitterly witnessed defeat of the amalgamation referendum, election of a solid slate of amalgamation opponents, and loss of one of his strongest supporters on Saanich council.

Elected to two-year terms on council were incumbent councillors Joseph Casey and Harold Todd, and popular former councillor Leslie Passmore.

CHARD EDGED

Coun. Casey and Coun.-elect Passmore topped the polls, while Coun. Todd edged out amalgamation candidate Coun. Robert Chard after a give-and-take battle throughout the race.

Reeve Murphy seemed downhearted by the outcome. His only consolation was the fact the referendum was defeated by only 55 per cent whereas it was defeated by 65 per cent in the 1959 referendum.

Asked what step he will take now, the defeated reeve said: "There is no step to be taken. The people have determined to remain independent—remain independent we will do."

He said the election was a setback for amalgamation, that another amalgamation referendum cannot be put to the people within the next couple of years and that Saanich council will now have to "get on with building a new municipal hall, calling sewer votes and considering our own problems."

TENSE AIR

Atmosphere became tense at the municipal hall, where election returns were tallied. Candidates and interested voters crowded into the narrow room.

The blue haze of cigar and cigarette smoke half-filled the room, telephones jangled and adding machines clicked away every time one of the 13 polling stations reported a tally, and a loud chatter went up whenever a new total was scribbled on the blackboard.

EARLY ARRIVAL

Reeve Murphy was at the hall long before any returns started coming in. He predicted a 65 per cent vote to favor of the amalgamation study referendum and thought candidates Casey, Chard and Donald Mathison would win.

Referendum results started coming in at 8:26 p.m., showing substantial gains for the cause of amalgamation from

Rescuers Fight To Save 36 Trapped in Mine

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—A coal mine explosion trapped 36 men some 650 feet underground Thursday, and rescue crews struggled desperately to reach them.

More than eight hours after the violent blast, the three eight-man crews had worked their way about 2½ miles toward the trapped men—but still were an estimated 7,000 feet from their goal.

The explosion rocked a shaft of the Robena No. 3 mine of U.S. Steel Corporation about 3:15 p.m. It is located in southwestern Pennsylvania some 80 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Mine officials said air coming up from the mine contained large amounts of carbon dioxide, indicating a strong possibility of fire.

Eighty miners were reported working in the area. Forty-four reached the surface. Twenty of these returned to the shaft to aid the trained rescue teams.

TONS OF ROCK

The rescue units had to fight their way through tons of rock, coal and other debris which blocked the lateral tunnel leading from the frosty run shaft.

A stream of trucks discharged various types of mine rescue equipment at the top of the shaft where it was relayed downward by elevators.

A spokesman said he had no knowledge of the condition of the miners, that this could be determined only after the rescue crews established contact.

ESCAPE WAY NOT USED

The explosion came on the 55th anniversary of the worst mine accident on record in the United States. That was the disaster of Dec. 8, 1907, at Monongah, W.Va., which took 361 lives.

Nehru Looks At Front Line

TEZPUR, India (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru flew Thursday to the forward areas of the Sino-Indian border after saying India has made no agreement not to use Russian-built MIG jet fighters against Communist China.

Perhaps by coincidence, the 42 bombers matches the total of missiles which the Russians previously withdrew from Cuba.

SAME TOTAL

President Kennedy said Nov. 20 that the Soviet leader had promised to get all the planes out of Cuba within 30 days.

Children of some Victoria armed services veterans will skip their annual Christmas party this year so that 500 other Victorians can be happier.

A cheque for $100 was in the mail yesterday for The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund from the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Victoria Unit No. 12.

"Over the years we've had a Christmas party for the children of members and continued with our assistance to the needy veterans in the community," said secretary John Radley.

"But our members decided to forego the party this year and endeavor to spread the joy around, so to speak."

They wanted to give a little greater assistance to the community as well as continuing the usual veterans' assistance with hampers and so on," Mr. Radley said.

"They wanted to branch out a little and help out more," he added.

"We wish the Colonist 500 Fund lots of luck in its endeavors."

The cheque, not received when yesterday's list was made up, brings the fund total over $1,500.

It's welcome help, and just another demonstration of

Centennial Square

Park Aim: To Unify

By IAN STREET
Fifth of a Series

Centennial Square must attract people to come alive—hence the multiplicity of uses planned in and around it.

It will continue to be the centre of local government and law enforcement. With addition of a civic playhouse it will become a cultural centre and one for recreation, as well, in meeting needs of senior citizens.

To Attract

It will include an arcade of specialty shops and a parking garage for 300 cars, both of which serve to attract shoppers to the area.

Last, but not least, it will form a new urban park. Planners use words like "unifying force" and "catalyst" to describe the function which the square performs in relating each of these uses to the others. They say it will provide a new, open breathing space for the city.

Close Streets

To create the urban square plans are being made to demolish several buildings and close Cormorant Street in the block between Douglas and Government, and Broad Street between Cormorant and Pandora.

U.K. Smog Toll Reaches 90

LONDON (CP)—The dense killer smog descended on London again Thursday night but the weather forecast promised relief today.

Since Monday, the choking and sulphurous pall claimed 90 lives, according to a late night count.

It has wrecked transportation and caused huge losses in trade and industry.

But a weather bureau spokesman said it would thin this morning and by afternoon Londoners should see the sun.

Most of the known dead were victims of heart or lung diseases suddenly aggravated by sulphur-laden fumes.

And if the pattern of the great killer smog of 1952 (4,000 dead) is followed, many more will die of the same causes over the next few weeks whether or not the smog persists.

Can't Stop Winnie

LONDON (AP)—Smog kept most everybody home Thursday night but not Sir Winston Churchill.

The western prime minister, 85, drove from his Hyde Park Gate home to the Haymarket Hotel to attend a dinner meeting of The Other Club—a group limited to 70 members drawn from the arts, literature and politics.

Donations to the 500 Fund may be brought or mailed to The Daily Colonist at 3821 Douglas St. at Arcadium of Victoria, 710 Yates, during business hours. Donors should specify if they wish to be anonymous. Receipts for income tax purposes will be supplied on request.

pitch in. Yesterday's list includes donations from the Victoria Hill Corps Alumnae; from many friends; from the International Woodworkers of America Local 1118, and the Bapco Employees' Association. Perhaps the phrase "spread the joy" is the key to it all.

For that is the reason for the 500 Fund.

Just before Christmas, the fund is divided into 500 equal
